

Roosevelt Says He Is Not Certain He Will Name Hopkins

President Says Further He Could Not Tell When Cabinet Appointments on Supreme Court Would Come

Holt's Statement

Senator Holt Says Hopkins Elevation to Roper's Job Would Be Political

Washington, Dec. 16 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today, amid talk that Harry Hopkins might be the new secretary of commerce, that he had not yet made up his mind on cabinet replacements.

Resignations of Attorney General Cummings and Secretary of Commerce Roper have left two vacancies.

Mr. Roosevelt said he could not tell when cabinet appointments or an appointment to the supreme court might be expected.

Also asked at his press conference whether any more resignations in the cabinet were in prospect, Mr. Roosevelt said there were none he knew of.

The president said he soon would fill a place on the Home Owners Loan Corporation Board. Senator Holt (D-W. Va.) said in a statement, meanwhile, that if Hopkins, the WPA administrator, were appointed to the cabinet, it would not be a promotion but a move to prevent "congressional investigation of his scandalous handling of relief."

Holt said that if Hopkins did not get a new job before "the facts are known about his administration it would be too late to even offer him a timekeeper's job on the WPA let alone a cabinet post."

In accepting yesterday's resignation of the conservative, 71-year-old Roper, President Roosevelt gave no indication of his new choice for the post.

Many politicians, however, expressed belief that he would take advantage of this vacancy and the retirement, next month, of Attorney General Homer Cummings to create a solid front of younger New Dealers in the cabinet.

There have been rumors for several weeks that still other members of the President's official family might retire or be shifted to other positions. Postmaster General Farley, Secretary of War Woodring and Secretary Swanson of the navy have been mentioned in that connection.

Reports that Hopkins would replace Roper had been current even while the latter was denying he would withdraw. Hopkins has been attending cabinet meetings in his capacity as relief director, and is one of the most regular White House conferees.

If he is appointed, one Democratic senator who asked anonymity declared it would be a "build up" for the 1940 Democratic presidential nomination.

Some who insist that Hopkins has the inside track claim the position would give him a chance to demonstrate that he could work as assiduously in behalf of business advancement as he has in behalf of the people on relief.

Hopkins was not the only person whose name figured in capital speculation over the commerce secretaryship. Among those mentioned were Richard C. Patterson, former radio executive who recently became an assistant secretary in the department, and Ernest G. Draper, former assistant secretary who now is on the federal reserve board.

Roper's resignation was announced at the White House yesterday afternoon. The secretary said he desired to devote more time to his personal affairs, and reiterated his devotion to the administration's objectives. Friends reported that criticism from some New Dealers who considered him too conservative had hastened his decision to retire.

Fire Is Investigated

Littleton, N. H., Dec. 16 (AP)—Town and county officers today investigated the cause of a disastrous fire which destroyed four business buildings and a home last night. Police Chief Dan Gardner estimated the damage at $300,000.

'Isolation Baby' at Party

Cooped up in a dark room in her grandfather's home for the first five years of her life, Alice Harris, (in chair) now 6, laughed and clapped her hands at her first Christmas party with members of her Sunday School class at Uniontown, Pa. Nation Fears Future United States Attack

Objection Blocks Solid Front Against Aggressors at Pan-American Conference; Argentine Would Have Pact Calling for Defense Against any Nation at any Time

(By The Associated Press)

Argentine insistence that the possibility of aggression by the United States must be considered was the main obstacle today to a declaration by the Pan-American conference of a solid front against aggressors.

Consideration of a cooperative defense plan at the Lima, Peru, meeting so far has envisioned invasion primarily from abroad. But the Argentines want a resolution to provide for defense against attack by any nation.

In face of Argentine opposition to a pact, the United States delegation indicated it would be content with a strong resolution if it included a declaration against aggression by nations outside the Americas.

In France, right-wing parties launched a concerted drive for dissolution of the French Communist party. The campaign, by the elements on which the government of Premier Daladier depends for its existence, came as the premier sought parliamentary support for his budget.

The Italian cabinet ordered Jews to exchange all their land buildings above a fixed value for bonds bearing four per cent interest. The order fulfilled decrees adopted November 10 forbidding Jews to own land with a taxable income of more than 5,000 lire (about $260) a year and buildings whose annual taxable income exceeds 20,000 lire (about $1,040).

In London, the inter-governmental refugee committee considered Reichsfuehrer Hitler's terms for Jewish emigration from Germany as Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, had outlined them. Director George Rublee was understood to have declared that the committee could not hope to finance large-scale emigration unless Hitler allowed Jews to take some of their wealth with them.

Insurgent Spain debated the significance of the restoration of all civil rights and properties to former King Alfonso by insurgent Generalissimo Franco. Some contented that Franco was moving toward restoration of the Bourbon monarchy in Spain; others that he merely was allying fears of Carlists and other monarchial groups that he had no intention of putting a king back on the throne.

Sessions Resumed

Columbus, O., Dec. 16 (AP)—Delegates resumed sessions of the Anti-Saloon League's 30th national convention today. "Our objective is national prohibition in some form or other," declared Dr. Arthur J. Barton of Wilmington, N. C., in a keynote address last night.

Allaben Boasts Natural Gas on LaGranja Farm

Well Shoots Stream of Water and Belches Enough Gas to Burn Continuously; Content Is Saline

Yellowstone Park may boast of its own "Old Faithful" but the Catskill Mountain Park has an "Old Faithful" which not only bursts forth with a stream of water but also belches forth gas which is of such quantity that when a gas burner was recently attached to the pipe it burned continuously. The well has been gushing forth water and gas since last May when it was completed.

Located a mile and half west of Phenicia village on La Granja Farm, operated by Jose de La Fuente, at Allaben, the phenomenon has been witnessed in operation by many people but there has been no inspection of the burning well made by anyone familiar with this type of thing, although an analysis of the water was made shortly after the well was placed in operation. This analysis was made when it was found that at a depth of 260 feet water with a peculiar petroleum odor and taste had been encountered, accompanied by gas. The analysis showed that the water contained a very noticeable amount of petroleum, salt and other minerals. The saline content is very noticeable although not in sufficient quantities to prevent the water being used for domestic purposes.

Last spring the well was drilled to a depth of 150 feet through earth and 100 feet in rock before the vein of water was located. The well developed into a flowing well requiring no pumping to bring the water to the surface. The well was capped and led into the cellar where a pump was connected to force the water through a pressure system throughout the boarding house. Some time later the proprietor went to the cellar to make repairs to the pump and in the darkness struck a match to tighten a connection. There was a flash and the gas ignited along a connection in the pipe and burned for 20 minutes.

Discovery of the gas was told to a few friends and demonstration of the natural gas flow was made throughout the spring. The gas, like the water flows in surges or pulses. A lighted match held over the open pipe resulted in nothing until a surge of gas forced the pressure up and with a hissing sound the gas becomes ignited and burned for a few seconds throwing flame a foot to 18 inches.

"In no other way," he emphasized "can the spread of whooping cough be checked."

U. S.-German Diplomatic Tension Grows Stronger Today; Retaliatory Acts Hinted

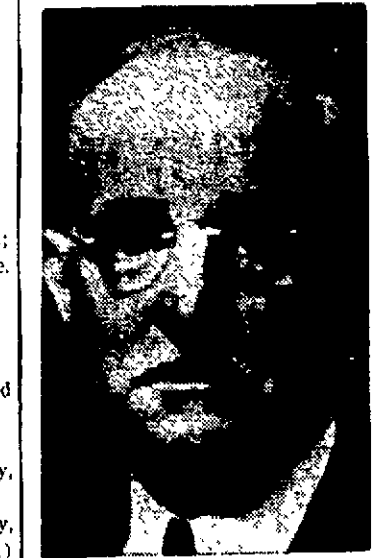

Washington, Dec. 16 (AP)—Diplomatic tension between the United States and Germany mounted today with hints that retaliatory measures might be invoked if American property rights in the Reich are jeopardized further by anti-Jewish and other confiscatory decrees.

This possibility came to light as the United States renewed its seven-month-old quest for adequate written assurances from Germany that American citizens would not be discriminated against because of their race or creed. The request was so drawn as to cover the rights of both Catholics and Jews.

Meanwhile, Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to London, arrived in the United States to confer with President Roosevelt. He expressed himself in New York yesterday as being "not particularly optimistic about the outlook for peace in Europe—but I don't think that's any reason for not trying."

Kennedy left at once for Washington to report on the General European situation. Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, in making public latest note delivered this week in Berlin, refused to rule out the question of retaliation, which might arise both in the Jewish connection and in the Austrian debt situation, another point of difference between the two countries.

State department officials made no secret of the fact they considered Germany's long delays in answering American diplomatic

Sanford Requests Parents to Assist Board of Health

Health Officer Says Only Care Can Prevent Spread in City of Whooping Cough; 74 Cases in November

Discussing the epidemic of whooping cough in Kingston today, Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer, said that the disease was still prevalent in Kingston with 74 cases reported in the city during November.

"It is extremely difficult to check the spread of this disease," said Dr. Sanford, "because of the fact that early symptoms are so mild. This consists of a slight cough which is usually loose, and is not hard nor spasmodic. During this stage, as well as later, the child may communicate the disease to others with whom he comes in contact."

"After about two weeks," said the health officer, "the cough becomes spasmodic and is accompanied by gagging and vomiting. The whoop may occur at this time or may never be present."

"All children of school age having whooping cough must be kept out of school from 6 to 8 weeks from the onset and also must not be allowed to associate with other children or to attend public gatherings, such as the movies, church, school, parties, etc., nor to leave the premises where they reside unless accompanied by an adult who shall prevent contact with other children."

"The school loss per child is great," said Dr. Sanford, "but unless all the above precautions are taken to prevent the spread of the disease many more children will be affected and will not only lose time in school, but have to undergo the dangers of the disease as well."

Dr. Sanford urges parents to apply a little more of the Golden Rule. "If your child has whooping cough," he said "why let him convey it to others. Is it not better to call your physician early, have a diagnosis made and treatment given and then follow out the isolation period, usually 6 weeks?"

Fourth Brother Faces Arrest

Federal Authorities Rush to Connecticut—Reports Say Mrs. Coster Unable to Restrain Husband From Suicide—Attorney Tells of Act

Fairfield, Conn., Dec. 16 (AP)—F. Donald Coster, indicted president of the vast McKesson and Robbins Drug Corporation who had been disclosed as an ex-convict with a criminal record going back more than a quarter of a century, shot and killed himself today at his country mansion near here.

Federal authorities were on the way to the luxurious Coster home to re-arrest him at the time.

Fully dressed, Coster went into the bathroom, pressed a pistol to his right ear, and pulled the trigger.

First reports indicated that Mrs. Coster had seen her husband with the pistol but had been powerless to restrain him. She collapsed afterward.

Samuel Reich, an attorney, rushed from the home as soon as he had heard what had happened, put his hand to his head, pointing with finger as though it were a pistol, and shouted: "He shot himself! He shot himself!"

Investigators were told that three weeks ago Coster—who formerly was Philip Musica, an ex-convict, until he made an almost incredible change in his name, his associations and his whole life—had indicated an intention to take his own life and that his three pistols had been secreted in the family garage by a chauffeur.

The investigation into the $87,000,000 drug firm which Coster headed had not begun at that time—an investigation of an apparent $18,000,000 overstatement of assets.

Art Gorman, an assistant federal attorney in New Haven, Conn., arrived at the front door of the Coster home only to hear the shot that ended Coster's life.

"I arrived here about noon in company with about ten other men connected with the United States marshal's office in New Haven," he said. "We had come here to take Coster into custody for the purpose of raising his bond before the commissioner in New Haven."

Shot From Upstairs

"As we stood at the door we heard a shot from upstairs. The household was in turmoil. I have seldom seen such hysteria or heard such weeping as was set up immediately."

"U. S. Marshal Bernard Fitch ran upstairs and found the body of Coster in the bathroom, a bullet through his head. He was dead—thoroughly dead when Fitch found him."

"Mrs. Coster was panic-stricken and hysterical almost beyond control. She was there with a man named Jenkins who was associated with Coster in some way. The rest of the household, as nearly as I could discern, were servants."

'Broken Man'

"With us was Dietrich. When we heard the shot he suddenly became a broken man. He wept pitifully and carried on when he learned that what he had feared actually had happened."

"Mrs. Coster kept repeating, 'He told me he wouldn't do this. He swore he wouldn't.' 'The entire household seemed to take the shooting very hard. Dietrich denied to us that he was Coster's brother, and, frankly, I don't believe he was.'

"Now we are going to the U. S. marshal's office in New Haven. The family remained by itself in a room shut off from the rest of the house. The body has been taken away by the local undertaker."

Coster, as he shot himself, had his left hand in his pocket. He stood in front of a mirror. As he fired—with a .38 calibre police pistol—he toppled backward and fell halfway into the bathtub.

His spectacles fell into the bowl under the mirror.

U. S. Marshal Fitch, who had inches in the air. When the surge passed the flames died out. These surges come at intervals of about five seconds and the water flowing from the well comes in similar surges.

Later in the season the well was capped outside the house and to the stand pipe above the water tank-off was attached a gas burner. The surges now force sufficient gas into this expansion pipe to permit a continuous light to burn from the gas burner and there apparently is gas sufficient to burn more than one burner. Although the well has been performing since last May the supply of gas has not slackened and now appears to be fully as great if not greater than last May when the well was opened. The well is located about 10 feet from the house.

While geologists claim there is no oil in the Catskills the taste of petroleum is very noticeable in the well and the presence of natural gas is apparent. Well drillers in this locality claim small pockets of gas are struck at times but cease to flow after a short time.

New Paltz to Be Host to Rally of Episcopal Youth

On Sunday there will be held at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in New Paltz a Youth Rally for all young people between the ages of 14-25 who reside in the northern section of the Archdiocese of the Hudson, a section which includes the following parishes and missions: Holy Innocents, Highland Falls; St. John's, Cornwall; St. George's, St. Paul's, and Good Shepherd, Newburgh; St. Andrew's, Walden; St. Andrew's, Montgomery; St. John's, Ellenville; St. Andrew's, New Paltz; Ascension, West Park; Holy Trinity, Highland; St. Thomas, New Windsor; All Saints, Rosendale; St. Thomas, Rifton; St. Peter's, Stone Ridge; St. John's Memorial, High Falls; Holy Cross and St. John's, Kingston; and Trinity, Saugerties.

The rally will start at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon and continue until 6:30. From 3:30-

4 o'clock the Rev. H. Ross Greer of Millbrook will speak on "The Need of Concerted Youth Action for Christ." From 4 to 4:30 there will be discussion groups. From 4:30 to 5:30 the Rev. F. Grey Gerten will speak on "The Youth Division of the Diocese of New York." From 5:30 to 6 o'clock there will be a chance for questions and discussion and from 6 to 6:30 the Young People will enjoy a box luncheon with coffee being served by the entertaining group.

This rally is but one of many which are being held throughout the diocese of New York for the purpose of enlisting the youth in a united front with a united will for Christ and His church to combat anti-Christian movements and influence.

At 7 p. m. Sunday, December 18, a carol service will be held at the Episcopal Church in New Paltz. This service will take the form of Evensong at which between 10 and 15 carols will be rendered by the newly formed choir composed mainly of students of the Normal School. This service is opened to all and the public is cordially invited.

On Christmas Day at New Paltz the service at the Episcopal Church will be held at 11 a. m. It will be Holy Communion and sermon.

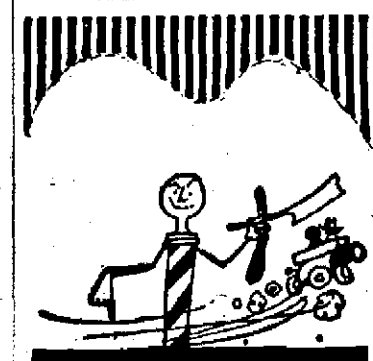

Stars Are Out of Step

In Journey Around Sun while the earth and all the planets travel around the sun in an anticlockwise direction, as do also the nine moons of Jupiter and the two moons of Mars, the satellites of Uranus and Neptune, the two outermost planets, move in a contrary direction, notes a writer in London Tit-Bits Magazine.

Since the sun is master of the solar system, and gave to his children both their speed and direction, how is it that some of his grand children are disobedient to his law? Neither scientists nor astronomers have ever come to a definite understanding of how the planets originated, though most are agreed that billions of years ago another sun either collided with ours and was absorbed into it, or that a similar fiery body passed so close that it dragged great ribbons of incandescent gas out of the sun's body, and that these in the course of time cooled and coalesced into the planets and their satellites.

It is probable that the eccentricities shown by the children of Uranus and Neptune are due to the fact that before they had time to settle down into their properly-ordered ways, some still more distant heavenly body swept by them, imparting its own rotation to the starchy toddlers.

Lake Katrine

The first lesson in food preparation in this season's schedule of the Lake Katrine Home Bureau was held Saturday at the home of Mrs. Max Lachmann.

The selection and cooking of meats, especially the cheaper and less tender cuts, was able explained and demonstrated by Mrs. Daniel Morehouse. Methods and variations in broiling, cooking and tenderizing tougher cuts and the proper utensils for such use were discussed by the group.

A luncheon was prepared and served at noon.

The next food's lesson will be given at the home of Mrs. Cortland Van Eiten, Thursday, January 26.

On Thursday, January 19, a style show 'on the silk dresses and a lesson on "Developing a Pleasant Personality" will be held at the home of Mrs. Carl Wille.

Shandaken Unit

The Shandaken Home Bureau held a luncheon meeting yesterday at the home of Mrs. F. S. Osterhoudt to celebrate the 10th year of the organization of their unit. Mrs. Cleveland, the secretary, brought a copy of the report of their first meeting. They had a lesson on the dying taught by Miss Evelyn Nance, the home demonstration agent.

Almost the same group met today. The following were present: Mrs. F. S. Osterhoudt, Mrs. W. C. Hummel, Mrs. Mae VanBramer, Mrs. Percy White, Mrs. G. H. Gulnick, Jr., Mrs. Agnes Foughey and Mrs. F. M. Cleveland, Mrs. Ray Crossman, of Napanoch, and Miss Everette Parsons.

At the meeting Mrs. Irene Crossman taught the group how to select and cook the less tender cuts of meat.

The group met at 11 o'clock for the lesson and prepared the luncheon which consisted of flanked steak, mashed potatoes, gravy, grape jelly, cabbage, salad, birthday cake and coffee.

The U. S. department of agriculture estimates that unfertilized fruit juices, excluding cider, increased from 1,000,000 cases in 1920 to 24,000,000 cases in 1938; tomato juice jumped from 220,000 cases to 16,000,000 cases.

PAN-AMERICAN PROGRAM

Correspondents at Lima report that action taken at the big conference, when the oratory and committee meetings are over, probably will be along these lines:

There may be a joint resolution condemning racial persecution.

The American republics will strongly proclaim their determination to defend themselves against external aggression, whether by arms or political pressure.

Instruments of peace signed at the conference probably will be combined in one basic document serving as a sort of Constitution of the Western Hemisphere.

Codification of international law, as it exists among the American nations, will be carried forward.

A plan for rotating annual meetings of Pan-American foreign ministers proposed by Argentina, may be adopted.

Suggestions for an American league of nations and an international court of justice for this hemisphere probably will be held over for some future conference.

Nearly all of these proposals seem useful and worthy of support. If they can be approved, it will be evidence of essential unity or spirit in this hemisphere, in spite of the varied interests and racial differences of the nations involved. Nothing of the sort is imaginable for Europe, Asia or Africa.

CHINA'S VALLEY FORGE

Chinese leaders know quite a bit of American history. At a time when many sympathetic Americans are saddened by the plight of China, entering another winter of war, poorly clothed and armed, with credit and supplies running low, Ambassador Hu Shih describes the situation in terms of our American revolution.

"Valley Forge has been recorded by all authentic historians," he reminds us, "as a period of great hardship. Shortly afterward England offered peace, honorable peace. Its acceptance would have prevented four more years of war, but there could have been no independence and no United States of America. It was refused. The colonists fought on, and finally Washington marched to victory at Yorktown."

"The colonists achieved final success because Washington and his colleagues continued to fight for years. And as they fought, the international situation changed in favor of their cause."

It is a striking reminder. When the harassed Chinese thus bolster their faith, how can Americans do less than give them a cheer? It may be true, as Dr. Hu Shih says, that "time and geography are on their side." If they can "get a break" internationally, as we did, they may yet realize their Yorktown.

PRESS FREEDOM AT LIMA

It is good news that there is to be no censorship of news about the Eighth Pan-American Conference now in session at Lima. Ordinarily there is government censorship of news in Peru, but the authorities have notified the cable and wireless companies that dispatches concerning the conference are to be forwarded without going through the censors' hands.

This does not mean that news will spread throughout the world with complete freedom. There will be strict censorship on the receiving end in a large part of the world. Only such partial and "slanted" reports will be published in Germany, Italy, Japan, Russia and a number of other nations as their governments choose to make public.

Citizens of the United States, Canada and, one hopes, of Latin America, will read the news reports, hear many of the speeches by radio, and have a steady flow of interpretation and background information from well-informed observers. That, fellow-Americans, is a great satisfaction and a blessing.

SOCIAL LOYALTY

It is well known that there is more respect for law, and more observance of it, in England than in America. Discussing why it is so, an American editor points out this interesting fact:

"In our schools a boy grows up learning not to tell tales. In England it is the habit to turn over to the police information about any kind of wrong-doing." Until we acquire a similar attitude, he says, England will be ahead of us in social behavior and law observance.

The opposition of the two attitudes is striking. Our primary loyalty seems to be to the schoolmate, friend or neighbor who is breaking the rule. It is an individual loyalty. Britain's loyalty is social, public or national—loyalty toward the whole group of which the offender is a part.

Our individual form of loyalty is primitive; the social form of loyalty is mature, and with the development of society becomes more and more important.

UNCLE SAM, TOY-MAKER

American factories are now making more of the toys used here and exporting more to foreign countries. Japan has shipped only about half as many toys to the United States this year as last. Germany's shipments to us are about the same as for 1937, but Czechoslovakia's usual quota is greatly reduced.

There may be various reasons for this, but an important one is the fact that industry abroad is more and more devoted to munitions. The toy factories are being crowded out, but toys are still in demand, resulting in a larger market for Uncle Sam.

Brief surveys of toy departments in this country indicate that toys are better all around. They are of better materials and greater variety, and many of them have educational value as well as strong appeal to boys and girls.

This is a trend in playthings which has long been urged. Safe toys for the littlest ones (no cutting edges or poisonous paint) and constructive hobby toys for older boys and girls are the order of the day.

We hope Europe and Asia are listening to that Lima conference. An earful should be good for what ails them.

Some people fish in troubled waters, and others just trouble the fishin' waters.

RECOVERY WITHOUT OPERATION

I have spoken before of visiting a friend and finding him sick with appendicitis. Although not his physician, he asked me to feel the "tightness" across his abdomen. There was no question about the condition being an acute appendicitis and that Nature was "wailing off" the appendix from other organs. I was greatly concerned and told him that if it were myself or any member of my family an operation would be performed at once and that if he didn't telephone his physician at once, I would. His wife and himself were opposed to operations and told me so kindly but firmly.

I scarcely slept that night as I believed I should have tried further to persuade them to have an operation. I called the home early the next morning and the patient answered it himself and said he was feeling better. I called again and he told me that a "strange" thing had happened. He felt a sudden desire to empty the intestine and when he did so the waste was composed of pus. The appendix had burst into the bowel and the pus passed out instead of getting into abdomen and causing peritonitis—inflammation.

While this case is unusual, many similar cases have been recorded.

Do cases of appendicitis recover without operation? Yes! Many individuals have recovered from one or more attacks.

The regular correspondent in Italy of the American Medical Association states that Prof. Sica reported thirty-four cases of acute appendicitis with a limited amount of peritonitis on the first to fourth day of the disease. All of the patients recovered after "medical" treatment. Among fourteen patients under "medical" treatment who had acute appendicitis and the peritonitis was widespread, only five recovered. Thus in a series of cases of acute appendicitis with a small amount of peritonitis all the thirty-four cases recovered without operation, whereas in fourteen cases where peritonitis was widespread, none of the fourteen died.

What is Prof. Sica's advice? Should operation be performed when so many recover without it? As the physician cannot tell, in the early stages of acute appendicitis, just what is likely to happen, Dr. Sica states, "It is advisable to operate whenever possible in the first hours of acute appendicitis as the death rate is then nothing or very slight." Don't delay if your physician advises operation.

THE ARMY POST MURDERS

By Virginia Hanson

Chapter 37

Adam Explains

"SHAW," Adam went on "Barney took the part of a girl in Hurd's Night shows—did he sing?"
 "Yeah, he was a scream—big as a horse and coy, and a shrill falsetto voice." The grin froze on his face. "Great Godfrey," he breathed. Adam nodded slowly, soberly.
 "The song was to heighten the illusion—it's easy enough to mimic a monotone. And there had to be a second bullet in case the fatal one did not lodge in the wound."
 "You see, he thought she was dead—he meant her to be dead—when he carried her onto the dance floor."

Mary Shaw hid her face against her husband's shoulder and began to sob. He put a perfunctory arm around her, spoke to her impatiently.

"I always told you Barney had ice water in his veins. But look, Adam, you mean to say he carried her around the floor? Why, man, I had a girl pass out on me once when we were dancing—weighed a ton. I could hardly get her to a chair! They're not like ordinary people—stiffs, I mean. They—they sag."

Adam said, "True. But I doubt if Barney realized that when he made his plans. She's a tiny thing, and Barney—I'm not weakling, but I assure you I was helpless yesterday afternoon in his arms. I think it's possible he underestimated the task he had set himself; but once started, he had to do it—there was no backing down after he'd shot her. He had literally left himself with no alternative, and it's remarkable what you can do when you have to save your skin. But did you notice him afterward—in the dressing room?"

Mrs. Flower's head was nodding violently again. "Trembling all over, he was, like a leaf!"
 "With fatigue, not horror," Adam pointed out.

"But the blood!" expostulated Lou Orplington.

"There was little external bleeding, fortunately for him. Although he was prepared for that too. The costumes—I think you all heard Anne say that Barney planned them. The big crimson heart, pierced by an arrow, served a dual purpose. A target of sorts; and a mask for the blood that must spill before he could tamp the wound. He probably used absorbent cotton for that and held it in place with his handkerchief. And disposed of it afterward."

Mrs. Flower spoke in a detached voice.

"He wasn't exactly human, was he?"
 "And that sentry," I said slowly. "was trying to tell you."

"That there was a balloon already tied to her ankle when Barney carried her into the building. He didn't mention the carrying, because it was a familiar sight—a habit of Barney's. He carried her to the car, why shouldn't he carry her from the car? The balloon was a minor flaw in the plan, and he thought he had provided for that when he insisted to Shaw that everyone be inside for that dance—so there would be no witnesses to his arrival. He didn't count on the sentry. For the balloon, of course, had to be tied to her ankle before he took her out of the car. Once he was where he could be seen, he couldn't let go of her for a minute."

'Burnt Powder'

LOU ORPLINGTON had been pondering. She spoke now, pugnaciously, unconvinced.

"I might have mistaken a bursting balloon for the sound of a shot. But I swear I smelled burnt powder."

"So you did," said Adam calmly. "Another thing the sentry might have remembered, if I had thought to ask him, was that Barney dropped a cigarette butt as he reached the steps of the veranda. Mrs. Flower, wasn't Barney at your house on the Fourth of July?"

"Yes, he was. He and Gilly had quite a time."

Her jaw sagged, she resumed in a hushed, admiring voice.

"Gilly said there was a firecracker somewhere that hadn't been shot off—don't you remember, Flower? That child is continually surprising me. . . . He was right, wasn't he?"

"He may have been. Probably Barney dropped it in his pocket and forgot it. I'm not saying he planned this thing that far in advance. But he found a use for it."

"Are you just guessing about the firecracker?" demanded Lou Orplington.

GARDINER

Gardiner, Dec. 15—Kenneth Hoffman, of Long Island, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hoffman.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ose of Poughkeepsie were Sunday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Everts.

Mrs. Della Butler of Platekill spent the week-end with her daughter, Miss Mary Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Edmunds of Pine Bush called on friends here Sunday.

Miss Helen McElheny spent the week-end with Miss Eleanor Bundy of Kingston.

Mrs. Mary Flavin, daughter, Katharine, and sons, Thomas and Robert, of Flushing, L. I., were week-end guests at the home of Mrs. Kate Clinton.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roebuck entertained friends for his birthday, Saturday evening.

Miss Gus Miller and Mrs. L. Klyn accompanied Mrs. Samuel Vandemark, of Cornwall-on-Hudson, to Kingston Tuesday.

Miss Margaret Clinton, employed in New York, spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. Leo Clinton.

Mrs. A. D. McKinstry, Mrs. Frank Dunsinberry and Mrs. Floyd McKinstry were in Middletown Monday.

Miss Blanch Everts of Poughkeepsie spent the week-end with "No, I'm not guessing. There would have been a long fuse on it. It was not essential to the plan, just an embellishment; and it might not have worked. The fuse in a nest of crumpled paper, behind some shrubs in the flower bed at the edge of the steps. It might not catch fire from the cigarette. The fuse might go out. The cracker might prove a dud. If so, there was no harm done—there were the popping balloons, the power of suggestion. Someone would be sure to have heard a shot."

"No, I'm not guessing. After he had been put to bed Barney remembered that a firecracker leaves traces. He stole out of his room by the window, found the place, scraped dirt over the debris. And found the two smoke-blackened, whitewashed stones. A actually there was little chance that they would ever be noticed or, if they were, that any significance would be attached to them. But murderers have to be scrupulously neat. He took them, intending, perhaps to clean them or to exchange them for others in a less telltale position."

"So the weapon was in his hand when he reached bachelor quarters and overheard the sentry's innocent remark. . . . This morning I found the place where the stones had been, and in the loose dirt scraps of scarlet paper. . . . There was a little silence, then Captain Flower's scrupulous exact mind dictated the final, the telling question."

"But this that you've told us is not enough—to convict a man, I mean. Scraps of evidence, placed together with conjecture. The sentry might die. Anne might not live to tell that he shot her. If that is all, if there is no further evidence, why did Barney lose his head and try to escape?"

'Accusing Him'

IT WAS the longest speech I had ever heard from the little man. It won for him a glance of affectionate admiration from Adam.

"You're quite right, Captain. It was not enough—though, by the way, I suspect that Anne has been trying to tell that he shot her every time she spoke his name. She was not asking for him but accusing him—that's why she fainted again when he came in the room."

"No. Except for the actual evidence of the firecrackers and the final shot on Anne, I guessed all this before daylight. The second attempt on Anne's life confirmed the guess, but it was the proof that was bothering me. And I found it—the ejected shell of the bullet with which she was actually shot."

There was a chorus of sharp, excited questions. He answered them in order.

"How? By letting him lead me to it. Where? On the target range where cars often park at night, where he took her last night, where he actually shot her."

"How do I know it was the right one? It was a thirty-two and, as far as I know, the only gun of that caliber on the post belongs to Elizabeth. It can be proved that it was fired from her gun. It can be proved that her gun was never out of her possession until yesterday. Colonel Wright told me that the gun was new and had never been fired on this post."

"Barney led me to the spot, and I picked the shell up in front of his eyes before he could put his foot on it and grind it into the turf. That's why he lost his nerve. That's why he shot himself. . . ."

"The maiden, all forlorn," Adam quoted gently, taking his eyes from the road long enough to meet mine. "I'm sorry you're cutting your visit short—you're carrying away ugly memories."

"If it were only that. But I feel so inadequate. When she said good-by Elizabeth apologized for having invited me. She had no idea, of course, of what was coming, but she knew the evening would be an ordeal and she wanted a friend—not to confide in, just to be near. And, Adam, I scarcely saw her all evening."

I blinked at the corn rows we were passing. The iron fence had disappeared. Fort Ben Havens was behind me.

Adam said very soberly. "There are some things that no one can help us with—we have to go through them alone. You were there if she wanted you. I can understand that would be enough."

"Adam—why, if he loved Elizabeth, did he throw suspicion on her by using her gun and the Malay kris?"

BABSON ON BUSINESS

GOOSE STEP ALONG THE AMAZON

Babson Says, "Stake Jobs to New Life In South America"

Knoxville, Tennessee, Dec. 16—The pow-wow down in Lima, Peru is a good thing. Leaders of the various Pan-American nations should get together and know each other. Such meetings, however, compare with the German "get-acquainted" methods in South America as a Ladies Auxiliary tea compares with a C.I.O. of ocean separated us from our "enemies." Five years from now only the width of the Panama Canal may lie between us. While the Fascists would not openly dare to build a naval or air base in this hemisphere, in reality they are doing something far more dangerous: They are cutting us out economically with the Latin-Americans. They are doing it by a clever program of penetration and propaganda. They are bombarding the continent with Fascist broadcasts twenty-four hours a day. They control and color the news services.

Many of the newspapers are German-owned—fifteen in Brazil alone. There are 1,400 German schools in Brazil—all run on straight Nazi lines. They have about 40 landing fields in the same country. Their air-lanes have brought Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires nearer Berlin than New York. Italian airmen train South American aviators. On the eve of the Lima conference, Japan completed a deal with Peru to buy 3,000 tons of cotton yearly in exchange for the little of Peruvian restrictions on Japanese textiles.

A Lima-Tokio telephone service will soon be installed. Through government-controlled trade, Germany and Japan sell manufactured goods in South America and often take their pay in oil or mining concessions.

"Hell" in Panama

The basic reason for Fascist success in penetrating South America, however, is their immigration. Buenos Aires, for instance, is the second largest Italian city in the world. (New York is first.) The Japs are thick all along the West Coast, while the Germans are the most numerous and influential foreigners on the South American continent. These Germans are loyal to Hitler. They use the same strong-arm methods in snatching trade as Der Fuehrer used in grabbing Austria. The Nazi slogans and tub-thumping organizations have all been carried across the ocean. You only have to go as far south as Panama to hear marching Bunds shout "Heil."

How can we hold our own? First, our brand new navy will make a big impression. Herr Hitler knows the language of guns. So do all the little dictators who

Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—At times the ways of diplomacy are as clear as crystal if the right light is turned on them, and that is the case with the outbursts of Italian demands for certain parts of French territory.

No Italian in his right mind expects to get Tunisia, which is a very rich piece of French Africa bordering on the Mediterranean. Nor does the right-minded Italian expect to get the Mediterranean island of Corsica or Savoy on the Italian border. But competent opinion here is that the shrewd Italians who staged all this money business do expect to get Djibouti.

Your memory has to be two years long if you remember Djibouti. It is the little mud-flat city on the east coast of Africa washed by the Red Sea. It is the entry port for Ethiopia. Italy wants it because it needs a port of outlet and inlet for Ethiopia.

Most of the shouting, it is true, has been for Tunisia, Corsica and Savoy. But the rest of shouting for one thing while wanting another is as old as the hills and works as well as more complicated maneuvers. Djibouti is an extremely important strategic point for Italy in developing Ethiopia.

England May Be Generous

HOWEVER, its location is also important in England's empire considerations. But England always has evidenced a disposition to give away territory belonging to other nations. She might let France give up Djibouti even though it gives the Italians a dangerous outpost on the British-empire line through the Mediterranean and Red Sea.

There's historical background for Italy's demands. France got Savoy from an Italian principality before Italy had become a uni-control the Latin American "republics." Second, our reciprocal trade agreements are helping even though they are not so effective as Germany's system of blocked marks and government barter. (Blocked marks can be used only in buying German-made goods.) Third, the new attitude of the Washington government—such as naming commercial steamships after Latin nations—will help. In addition there are other things we can do that are not being done.

Teach More Spanish

We can feature South America in our papers and schools. Our libraries and our text-books are filled with a lot of nonsense about Europe and scarcely anything about South America. We can teach more Spanish in our schools in place of French, German, and Latin. Nothing helps to create better feeling than to be able to speak another man's language. We can send high-grade representatives to the South. Many a sharp deal has been pulled down there by unscrupulous "Yankees."

We can sell our best-quality products in South America. I am told that we have used it as a dumping ground for shoddy and second-hand machinery.

Finally, we can match Japanese, German, and Italian immigration with American immigration. We have 9,000,000 jobs—many of them driven out of the old Dust Bowl. They cost Uncle Sam an average of $500 each per year for welfare. Why not select some of the most ambitious of the unemployed and give them a year's relief check in advance as their stake to a new start in such countries as Bolivia, Argentina, and Brazil? These nations need more people of the American pioneer type.

Create A New Frontier

At the same time we need a new frontier. Our unemployment problem and the filling up of our West

CREEK LOCKS

Creek Locks, Dec. 16—The Misses Helen and Virginia Constant entertained their friends from New Jersey over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Werker, who have been in New York for some time, have returned to their home here. Winger Dugan, who is stationed at West Point, was home over the week-end to see his mother.

The Creek Locks school entertainment will be held at the Creek Locks schoolhouse Friday evening, December 23.

Mr. and Mrs. Lukas, Arthur Constable and Mrs. Humman were in Kingston Tuesday.

Mrs. I. Carmichael made a trip to Kingston Wednesday.

Martin Lynch is visiting his aunt, Mrs. E. Schinnen, at Rosendale.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hensley were in Kingston Wednesday.

Trouble in Memel

Election for Diet Goes Nazi
—And So May the District

After the World War Germany lost a slice of land along the Baltic to Lithuania—a slice about half the size of Delaware, with 132,000 inhabitants, mostly German. That District of Memel held a local Diet election on December 12. Almost all the 29 seats went to Nazis. What happens next depends mainly on Adolf Hitler.

Parent-Teacher Association

Address is Given

Highland, Dec. 15.—The Rev. Devello S. Haynes Monday evening addressed the Parent-Teacher Association on the subject, "Preserving Our Spiritual Values." Miss Edna Curry, second vice president, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Frances Gaffney. The treasurer reported $64.69. She presented a bond for the TB benefit but upon motion it was voted to return the bond and send a check for $2 to the county chairman. It was also voted to purchase the refreshments for the return of the carolers on Tuesday evening. Miss Curry, Mrs. William Barnaby, Mrs. Vincent Lyons and Mrs. William Russell volunteered to prepare and serve the hot cocoa and sandwiches or cakes. The secretary, Miss Reynolds, was asked to write Adonia Lodge in appreciation for the use of the hall for the P-T. A card party. When the meeting adjourned coffee and cookies were served in the homecoming room by Mrs. A. Herbert Campbell, Mrs. G. E. Wilcox, Mrs. Irving Rathgeb, Mrs. Mebel Yeager and Mrs. Philip Wilkow. The committee for January 9 is Mrs. C.

W. Rathgeb, Mrs. V. P. Salvatore, Mrs. Arthur Clarke, the Misses Elizabeth Salese, Louise Taylor, Marie Van Wormer, Rose Symes. At that time Mrs. Gladys Meers and Arthur Poselma are co-chairmen on the subject, "Safety Rec. presents a Universal Duty and Privilege."

Hundreds of years of "Sweet Adeline" will be recorded by electrical transcription for reproduction at the Golden Gate International Exposition, if plans of the California Brewers' Association are carried out. Through song the story of malt beverages will be told, officials said.

GRANGE NEWS

Rosendale Grange
On Monday evening after the regular meeting of the Rosendale Grange the newly elected officers were installed by Mrs. Evelyn Kennedy as installing officer, assisted by Mrs. Neal Hotelling as marshal, Mrs. Henry Mollenhauer, assistant marshal, Mrs. Edith Rask, emblem bearer, Mrs. C. I. LeFever, regalia bearer, Mrs. Clinton Van Nodall, pianist, and Mrs. Albert Myers, soloist.
Officers for the year 1934 are: Master, Henry Mollenhauer; overseer, Edward Brodsky; lecturer, Thomas Farrell, Sr.; chaplain, Mrs. Floyd Deltz; secretary, Miss Elinor DeMar; treasurer, Herman Kraemer; steward, Mr. Jahn; assistant steward, Robert Zaengle; gate keeper, Robert Howard; lady assistant steward, Miss D. Zaengle; and ex comm., Floyd Deltz.
H. Story, district deputy, and Mrs. Story were among the invited guests who attended the installation. Mr. Story in his brief remarks congratulated Rosendale Grange on the efficient way their new installation team installed their officers, and gave a few helpful suggestions to the new officers and encouragement to the Grange as a whole.
At the next regular meeting on Monday, December 26, there will be a Christmas party and each member attending is asked to bring a ten cent gift for the tree and a small offering of cheer in the form of food for the Christmas baskets. There can be anything that is not perishable. Refreshments will be served later in the evening.
There will be a New Year's eve party in the Grange hall and a very pleasant evening is promised to all those who attend.
The spaghetti supper held in the hall by the ladies of the service and hospitality committee was well attended.
The football teams played Highland at Highland Tuesday evening and both Rosendale teams won two out of three games. The football teams will be the guests of Mt. Marion team Friday night of this week.

Licenses 1911 Car
Mount Ayr, Ia. (P)—Asa Rains drove up to the courthouse to get 1931 license plates for his 1911 automobile. It is a two-cylinder single seater with neither top nor windshield. He said it gives him uninterrupted service.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—Quotations:
"New York is hostile, menacing, tragic, cheap, and disillusioned. I like America least when I am in New York." J. B. Priestly, British playwright.
"I left America to escape boredom... I had found it a land of fakers and fools, of those who grope for light and those content to live in darkness... of reformers and informers, of all the variant kaleidoscopic peoples who have made of America the most gruesome and grotesque show on earth... I left America tired of the play. I returned eager to see another act in the humorous melodrama." Jim Tully, author, ex-pugilist.

"THE first New York Jews came from Spain by way of Brazil or the West Indies, and their graveyard may be seen in Oliver street. They were never harassed; then, in 1848, there came Jews from the Rhineland, and later the much poorer Jews... from Galicia and Russia, fleeing from the persecutions of the Holy Synod... Here as almost everywhere for ten centuries past, the Jews rule the fur and clothing trades... From hat to trousers they clothe the world... The literature of Jewish New York has a spiritual tension and an abstract quality which can be understood when one realizes that many of these Jews, reared on the East Side, have never seen a tree." Paul Morand, traveler, lecturer, author.

"BUT let me express here the conviction that those who shrug and say 'War is inevitable' are false prophets. I believe that the world is populated largely by decent people, and decent people don't want war. Nor do they make war. They fight and die, to be sure, but that is because they have been deluded by their exploiters, who are members of the indecent minority." Robert E. Sherwood, playwright.

"The Italians in New York become Americans in their way of thinking, but in manner of living they cling to the Old World customs. In that Harlem colony as well in another one near Washington Square it doesn't require much imagination to make you think you are in Italy. Recently I became lost in that Washington Square colony. I had to ask six different passers-by before I found one who could give me directions in English. The others spoke only Italian." Duke Street, author, correspondent.

Catches Albino Muskrat
Plymouth, Ia. (P)—Roy Butts caught something he didn't expect when he set out his trap line near here one night. The next morning Butts found an albino muskrat in the jaws of one of the steel traps. The animal was pure white with a light grey streak down the center of its back.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)
Yuletide Spirit
Puduch, Ky.—The thief who stole $20 from Lonnie Williams, blind cigar stand operator, is forgiven.
Williams had saved the money for a Christmas trip to Frankfort, Ky. C. K. Lovejoy, hotel manager, heard of the theft and sent him $25.
"I wish whoever got the twenty bucks a merry Christmas and a happy New Year," said Williams, smiling.

Sound Reason
Lillington, N. C.—E. M. Lynch of Lillington, Route 3, advertised his farm for sale in a newspaper. He listed "two tobacco barns, good house, tenant house, store and filling station, now doing business."
Then he added: "Reason for selling—too lazy to work."

But Why?
Miami, Okla.—Wrote Miami's county jail prisoners:
"Time is important to us and we can't tell the time from the new chimes just installed in the clock at the bank."
Cashier Noel Wyatt obligingly sent them a complete set of instructions on how to decipher the quarter-hour and hourly chimes.

Surprise Hero
Centralia, Wash.—B. H. Rhodes is puzzled how Uncle Sam learned about it after all these years.
He's just received a medal for "gallantry in action against insurgent forces in the Philippine Islands, February 5, 1899."
Attorney Rhodes, then a first sergeant, recalled that he led his men, trapped by Filipinos, out of a swamp and routed the enemy.

Artists Protest WPA Curtailment

Woodstock, Dec. 16—Artists on the Ulster County Federal Art Project met on Wednesday evening in the Woodstock Art Gallery to draw up a formal protest against rumored cuts they believe will be made in the personnel of the project. A delegation was selected to call on WPA officials in Albany, and petitions will be circulated throughout the county, protesting any curtailment of the Ulster County Federal Art Project.

At the close of the business meeting, Judson Smith, lecturer on the Art Caravan, gave an interesting talk on the work he is conducting with this truck which carries a portable art exhibit, to be set up in towns and villages throughout the state. Mr. Smith tours with the Caravan and at each stop lectures on art and the work of the Federal Art Project.

Old Wright Plane Can Still Fly

Besides the famed airplane which left the ground 35 years ago, December 17, at Kitty Hawk, N. C., the Wright brothers turned out many other planes. Their 13th—which made 750 flights without a crack-up and which is still able to take to the air—is shown above. It is housed in Philadelphia's Franklin Institute where William H. Shaehan (at the controls) is guard. Shaehan used to fly the ship back in 1912-14. He says, "We believe it's the oldest plane in the country still capable of flight." It was built in 1911 for Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, famed World War draft-dodger.

Sealed Verdict Is Due Monday

A sealed verdict will be returned Monday at the opening of Supreme Court in the negligence action brought by George Allen of Napanoch and his father, Smith Allen, and Marion Davis of Ellenville against Harry Smith of Danville, N. Y. The action grows out of an accident on January 10, 1937, near the County Line Inn of Frank Paterno at Monticello when the two cars collided at 2 o'clock in the morning. With Smith was Walter Startup of Ellenville.

Occupants of the plaintiffs' car allege injuries as well as the owner of the car asking damages to his car. The crash was investigated by State Trooper William Reynolds who was a witness at the trial.

John Bonomi appeared for the plaintiffs and Richard Hanna appeared for the defendant. During the trial there were frequent clashes between counsel and Justice Foster several times warned the attorneys to address their remarks to the court and refrain from outside discussions.

Melbourne, Australia (AP)—A fish cleaner died here of Weil's disease, the first case on record in Melbourne. The rare malady is contracted from rats.

Sundown Stories

By Mary Graham Bonner

Santa's System

CHRISTOPHER Columbus Crow flew back and forth with little, light packages in his beak and helped in packing the sleigh. But then, while Willy Nilly was arranging many of the big, awkward bundles, such as skis and toboggans, and skates and bicycles, Christopher had a good look around. There he saw Santa's headscope, and while Willy Nilly had known about it Great Boy explained it to Christopher. It was something like a radio and it was attached to Santa's wall.

"Santa listens through that to the messages children call up their chimneys to him," explained Great Boy. "You see the basket below it?" Christopher Columbus Crow nodded. "Well," barked Great Boy, "when Santa is not here, the dial which he invented himself, turns so that it catches the messages that are sent to him from all over."

"You know how people can turn a dial on a radio and get music from almost anywhere?"

"How can I understand," nodded Christopher. "I've listened to such music coming out of houses when I've been taking flights and resting on fences or in trees."

"Well, Santa's dial is even better," continued Great Boy. "It will go around by itself and all the children's messages come over it, and then come out printed on pieces of paper, right into the basket. It's like a radio with a printing machine attached. Santa thought of this improvement."

"Of course when he is here he turns off the printing part and just listens himself and writes down the messages. He says the greatest music he can hear is the music of messages from boys and girls everywhere."

"How certainly has a marvelous system," cried Christopher admiringly. "He has a radio of his own making which brings in children's messages to him instead of the ordinary kind over which one can hear music or stories."

It was time to leave now.

Books Made of Gingerbread

"American Reading Instruction," by Nida B. Smith, says, "Hornbooks were variously made of wood, ivory, powder, ivory, silver, and even gingerbread! This last medium was perhaps the first attempt to motivate reading instruction. . . . Since gingerbread was so highly prized, some one must have conceived the idea of bribing children to engage in the unpleasant task of learning the alphabet by offering them the gingerbread letters to eat when they had learned to name them."

The most complete Indian exhibit ever lined up will be on display at the Golden Gate International Exposition in 1939, George Creel, U. S. commissioner of the fair, has announced. Creel is in charge of the $1,500,000 Federal exhibit which includes the Indian

Sees Tolls Cut

Paris, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Suez Canal Company announced a cut in canal tolls today but said the reduction had no connection with the recent Italian press campaign. The fact that the reduction would be made had been privately announced last year at a stockholders' meeting, the statement said. The company also slapped back at statements that Italian ships were the biggest users of the canal. "Italian traffic has decreased constantly since Italy's invasion of Ethiopia," the statement said. "This year it will be less than 13 per cent of the canal's total traffic."

$65,000 for Employees

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—There will be $65,000 in Santa Claus' bag for the employees of Life Savers Corporation of Port Chester, N. Chapter Two

Wanted—Lonely People

"It's sweet of you to come to me when I know you must be so busy," Mrs. Marchand in a soft black crepe dress gave Noel a friendly smile as they sat across from each other in the large comfortable living room in the Lancaster Hotel suite.

Noel sipped her tea and felt the warmth of the hot liquid seep through her veins. They'd talked of their unconventional meeting the day before, of the amazing coincidence of their having the same name, and Mrs. Marchand had stressed her sincere delight at seeing her guest again.

Noel found herself telling this charming older woman some of her past, of her widowed mother's struggles through dark years of existence in the mining town, of her mother's death just when she'd gotten her first bit in the summer stock company.

"I've always wanted Christmas Eve in a big, old house," said Noel.

"That's when I met your son," Noel explained. "He was my first girlish crush, and we met only twice, but he didn't remember me at all. Of course, I was Noel Martin then, before Swannstrom gave me my new stage name."

"How is it that a beautiful girl like you hasn't married?" Mrs. Marchand wanted to know.

"I may, if I can bring myself to it," Noel leaned forward in her chair. "He's a swell person much older than I am and he would give me the security I've never known. Her eyes fixed themselves on the thick gray carpet. "Security is important for a woman, isn't it?"

"It is, if love goes with it," Mrs. Marchand poured herself a second cup of tea. "I suppose you can be satisfied with second best—here she glanced searchingly at Noel—"if you've had the best first."

Noel put her cup down. "I can tell by just looking at you, feeling your complete serenity that you've had everything."

"Yes," Mrs. Marchand's voice dwindled into the silence of the big room. "The happiness, and the peace that goes with it. Allan was the son of my first marriage. That was perfect love. Allan's father died in the war when Allan was ten years old. When he didn't come back I thought for a long time I couldn't go on. Later I married Allison Marchand. It was always pleasant companionship, until his death—it was the nicest kind of second best."

I Dread Christmas

FROM outside, muffled sounds of New York traffic crept into the room. Mrs. Marchand lit a lamp on a nearby table. It cast its brightness on a huge bowl of poinsettias. "Allan brought me these this morning," she said. "Poor darling, he's trying so hard to feel like Christmas." Mrs. Marchand walked to the window. "He's been down in South America all year and it's like Heaven to have him with me for this month, before he goes back again."

"I dread Christmas this year," Noel said it slowly. "There's no one to share it with. I've always wanted Christmas Eve in a big old house, with snow all around it, and warmth inside with people I love."

"Our house in Claiborne is like that—and it's not a far trip. Why don't you come and spend Christmas with us?" Mrs. Marchand's impulsive words rushed out.

"But," stammered Noel, "you know nothing about me. It sounds heavenly, but you're being too generous."

"I know more than you think, dear," Mrs. Marchand came over to Noel's chair. "I've lived long enough to know about people. And I'm being a little selfish, too. Because, you see, I'm dreading Christmas alone with Allan in the big house. There's so much to forget from last Christmas. My son came back then to marry a girl he loved. She was to spend the holidays with us, only on Christmas Eve she sent Allan a wire that she'd eloped with somebody else. It was hard for him then, and I know he hasn't forgotten. I'd like to fill the house with people, but he won't have his old friends—they're all tied up in thoughts of Elaine."

"If you'll have me, I'll come," Noel's hands were clasped tightly on the arm of her chair. "It's salvation—I was dreading the thought of Christmas Eve here with people who are just social connections."

Her voice was husky with emotion. "You've probably never known loneliness like only New York loneliness can be at Christmas time. Going to a party with a lot of other lonely people who have no real home or family of their own and trying to be gay in a false sort of way that has nothing to do with real Christmas at all."

Mrs. Marchand nodded in sympathetic understanding. "It seems selfish to have a big house like ours when there are so many who could be so happy in it. I wish we could have some of those lonely people with us—give them the gift of a happy holiday."

With a movement incredibly graceful for one of her years, Mrs. Marchand jumped up from her chair and went to a tall ebony cabinet at the other side of the room. "I think we should have a glass of sherry, just to toast the lovely Christmas we're going to have."

The House And The Spirit

SHE poured some of the amber drink into two crystal glasses and handed one to Noel. She raised her own slightly. "To our Christmas together, Noel."

"It's strange you should say that," Noel told Mrs. Marchand. "I mean about wanting lonely people with you. I've always hoped that some day I'd have a home and somehow I'd have a Christmas there for some of those people who wouldn't know Christmas otherwise."

"Well, why can't we do it? I've got the house and we've both got the spirit. But tell me how we should go about it."

Noel's laugh rang out. She didn't think Mrs. Marchand was serious and she answered lightly. "Well, we could put an advertisement in the public notices of the newspaper."

Mrs. Marchand finished her sherry. Her eyes were beaming. "Wanted—a flock of lonely people for an old-fashioned Christmas?" she asked. "Let's send in the advertisement and see what it brings."

"You may be letting yourself in for all sorts of trouble," Noel expostulated. "You may get the wrong kind of people—or goodness knows what."

"Well, we can choose from the answers. Here, we'll write it at once," Mrs. Marchand got paper and pen from the desk and motioned Noel over to the divan.

"How shall we say it?"

They made several copies, tore them up and tried again. Finally Mrs. Marchand cried, "I think this will do. Read it, dear."

An old lady with more than the needs of this world's goods wants to share Christmas. A large white house in the country awaits five guests who are dreading a lonely Christmas. No expenses involved; transportation arranged. The inn may be crowded but these doors will be open. Write immediately to Mrs. M. Box 25.

Noel read the lines when she had finished, looked questioningly at her hostess.

"Let's telephone it right away," Mrs. Marchand insisted. "Will you do it, dear? Tell them to charge it to me and be sure it's kept confidential."

MODENA

Modena, Dec. 16.—Forty-seven people attended the card and game party at Mr. and Mrs. Gershom Mount's home at Ardona, Monday evening, representing vicinities of Clintondale, Ardona, Modena and Plattekill. There were eight tables of pinochle, and two of dominoes, and those holding high scores were Mrs. Ray Lewis, Mrs. Marshall Lowrie, Mrs. Werner Pasberg at pinochle, Gershom Mount and Mrs. Philip Baker in dominoes. The party was conducted under the auspices of the Modena unit of the Ulster County Home Bureau and the committee in charge was Mrs. Lillian Faltridge, chairman, Mrs. Gershom Mount, Mrs. Marshall Lowrie, Mrs. Harold Sutton, Mrs. George Altheusen, Miss Nellie Altheusen, Mrs. Fischer and Mrs. Clara Bahr. A similar party will be held in Clintondale in January. Announcement will appear in this paper.

The final lesson in the clothing project, demonstrated to Home Bureau members, when finishing touches were given to garments being made in the class, was held at Mrs. Lester Arnold's home Monday afternoon.

A meeting of teachers of the Modena Methodist Sunday school will be held in the lecture room of the church Tuesday evening.

The Modena troop of Boy Scouts will meet Monday evening, December 19, in the Hasbrouck Memorial Hall.

Local members of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association will represent the Modena unit at a meeting in Kingston Tuesday evening, December 20, when the Kingston Veteran Volunteer Firemen's Association will be hosts. Following the business meeting which will be held in the city hall council chambers, members will adjourn to the Central Fire Station where refreshments and entertainment will be furnished.

The newly organized Mothers' Club has a meeting scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, December 21, in the Modena school. The organization has a large membership to date and new members are welcomed. Mrs. Ray Lewis is president, and Mrs. Earl DeWitt, secretary.

Miss K. Florence Morrissey, principal of the Modena school, addressed the members of the Mid-Hudson Philatelic Club at a recent meeting, on the subject of a play entitled "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," in connection with a display of Lincoln stamps, Miss Morrissey is studying dramatics in Columbia University.

Mrs. Mary DuBois, who has been spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. George Van Kleeck and family in Samsonville, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. John Denton, in this village.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Barley, of Kingston, were visitors of relatives here Wednesday.

The Rev. Philip Solbjørn assisted in conducting vesper services in the Plattekill Methodist Church recently.

Mrs. Albert Coy was a recent visitor of her cousin, Mrs. George Rinehart.

AMBASSADOR KENNEDY RETURNS

When U. S. Ambassador to Great Britain Joseph P. Kennedy returned to these shores recently on the Queen Mary for a vacation, he was greeted by his son, John, who went down the bay in a cutter to meet him. Judging from their smiles, father and son were mighty happy to see each other. Kennedy said he expected to see President Roosevelt in the near future.

The Benedictine Junior Auxiliary

Six years ago in 1932, there came into being an organization known as the Junior Auxiliary of the Benedictine Hospital. It was then a small group of girls, most of them daughters of friends of Benedictine Auxiliary members, with Miss Margaret O'Meara as the first president and Miss Margaret Nullen as the second.

Each year increased the membership and now under the incumbent president, Miss Elizabeth Egan, the Junior Auxiliary has a large membership of young women.

Although this organization is a subsidiary of the Ladies' Auxiliary it carries on its program independently and unlike the latter, has one aim. This aim is to improve in every possible way the children's department of the Benedictine Hospital.

With this in mind the Junior Auxiliary holds a tea dance each New Year's afternoon and the proceeds are used by the hospital for the children's department.

In the past the Junior Auxiliary bought three special hospital beds for the children's ward and brightened the room with new drapes. This year the Junior Auxiliary has a particular worthy objective planned. That is the purchase of a resuscitation machine for the new born babies who have difficulty in starting to breathe as they come in the world.

It is hoped that this year as always the New Year's tea dance will be well attended for it is not only an outstanding social affair but also an opportunity for perfecting the equipment with which to treat the sick child.

Vacation Schedule Changed by Board

Four special policemen will be employed during the summer months by the Kingston police department next year, when the board of police commissioners Thursday evening decided to change the annual vacation schedule for the members of the department to allow three men to be on vacation at the same time instead of the usual two.

This change was ordered so that the vacation period would extend during the summer months and not overlap into the fall months. The 3-man vacation schedule was in operation prior to 1934, when the number was reduced to two men.

While one additional special officer will be employed next summer the special officers will work for a shorter period of time than under the 2-man vacation schedule of the department.

The board decided to ask for lockers for the locker room in police headquarters. There are no lockers at the present time.

Two additional revolvers will also be purchased for use as replacements in the department equipment.

The annual budget was adopted by the board before it adjourned.

During the year ending September 30, 1938, a Jersey herd at the University of Tennessee set a new production record of 576.85 pounds of butterfat per cow.

No Mailing Rush At Post Office

The Christmas rush at the Kingston post office has not started as yet, according to Postmaster William R. Kraft, who expects that the rush will start on Saturday or Monday. Additional letter carriers and clerks will be placed on duty as soon as needed, he said.

In order to afford better service to patrons Postmaster Kraft has arranged that Saturday all windows in both the central and two substations will remain open until 6 o'clock that evening, and commencing Monday all windows, with the exception of the money order windows, will remain open until 8 o'clock each evening until Christmas.

While additional windows have been opened in the Fair street branch office, crowded conditions still continue, especially during the Christmas rush, and the postmaster is urging all those who live in the vicinity of the Central post office to take their mail there as there are better facilities for handling it, and the delay will not be as great as in the uptown office.

Postmaster Kraft said today that he wished to advocate that Christmas greetings be mailed as first class rather than with the 1½ cent stamp, as it meant better and quicker service, and the Christmas greetings would be delivered much quicker.

Hanstein Heads Insurance Men

The Ulster County Association of local insurance agents dined and had their annual meeting of the Governor Clinton Hotel at 6:30 o'clock last evening.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: Allan L. Hanstein, president; Harold Titus, Walkill, vice president; R. Frederick Childsey, secretary; Jacob H. Tremper, Jr., treasurer.

Bert H. Terwilliger of Ellenville, dean of Ulster county insurance agents, was elected honorary president of the association.

In addition to naming officers for the year a broad program of activities for 1939 was mapped out.

Plans were discussed for furthering the interests of stock company insurance for the best service to the public, and it was unanimously voted to limit the membership of the Association to insurance agents of Ulster county, representing stock companies exclusively.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on Wednesday, January 18, 1939, and Honorary President Terwilliger accepted the chairmanship of this meeting, to which members of adjoining county associations will be invited.

Dwight McEntee, Albert N. Cook, and William A. Van Valkenburgh were appointed a committee to study the present constitution and by-laws of the association and make any recommendations necessary to revise them.

Monthly Report Shows One Dead

In the 14 traffic accidents in the city during November, one person was killed and 15 injured, according to the figures contained in the monthly report of Chief of Police J. Allan Wood submitted at the regular monthly meeting of the police board Thursday evening. Of that number seven were injured in auto accidents; six pedestrians were hurt, and there was one coasting accident in which a child was injured.

During November there were 69 arrests made in the city of which number, two were women. The largest number arrested was for public intoxication when 28 arrests were made. There were 11 arrests on disorderly conduct charges; and 10 for traffic violations. Six vagrants were arrested and the other arrests for various offenses, including one on a charge of being an intoxicated driver.

Christmas Cheer Movie Is Shown

The Christmas Cheer Committee has arranged with the three local theatres for the showing of the Christmas Cheer movies taken by Henry Milson. These movies were taken during the first year that the committee operated and show interesting views of the packing of the bags for Santa Claus and the delivery being made with Santa Claus riding the fire trucks. They give a vivid idea of what the committee is doing to see that no needy child is forgotten on Christmas.

The first showing of the movies was given today at the Orpheum Theatre where they will also be shown Saturday and Sunday. Next week the movies will be shown at the Broadway and Kingston Theatres.

Hopkins Objects To Late Season

Sergeant John Hopkins of Ellenville, seen at the court house this morning, said that he had just finished two weeks in the Sullivan county deer woods, where he was in charge of the patrol work there during the hunting season. This was the 19th season that he has had charge of that work.

The sergeant said that an unusual circumstance connected with the deer season there this year was the finding of so many buck deer who had already shed their horns. He said that many hunters had failed to get their deer because of this fact and argued that the placing the season so much later than usual was a mistake.

Asked about the story that has been generally told to the effect that a hearse loaded with does that had been shot in the Sullivan section had transported its load of illegal deer meat down into New Jersey, the sergeant said that there was nothing to it. He said that the story started when a warning had been sent out to watch for parties who were said to be planning such a project.

Someone got hold of the story and it spread, with embellishments, and even landed in some of the newspapers. As told in Kingston a day or so ago, the tale had it that there were some five or six dead doe deer in the load, the bodies being covered with flowers in order to make it more realistic.

The surest thing about the future is that it will surprise us.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A GARDEN?

GARDEN HINTS

(By The Master Gardener)

Wanted: A ground cover that will be suitable for use under trees where it is difficult to get grass to grow. This is the plant of many gardeners. The new catalogues will soon be on their way to us and now is the time to acquaint ourselves with many of the little known plants which will solve this garden problem.

One of the best of such plants, one which adapts itself to many different conditions and which does not have the drawback of being a troublesome weed which gets out of bounds as do some recommended ground covers, is pachysandra terminalis (Japanese Spurge). It has these virtues:

It is evergreen.
It will thrive in dense shade or full sun.

It will adapt itself to almost any conditions of soil or exposure. It has a wide range of uses. It can be used as a ground covering under evergreen plantings, or under deciduous trees or shrubs; can be used for porch boxes, rockeries, bordering walks or drives, covering terraces, or cemetery plots.

It is one of the few plants which will thrive under pine trees.

Its yellow-green foliage contrasts well with the deeper green of the grass and evergreens, yet it is not too conspicuous.

Although rather slow to establish itself, once established it is there practically forever.

It is seldom attacked by insects.

Propagation is mostly by cuttings. In purchasing plants, pot-grown ones are superior to field-grown stock, as they are less difficult to transplant. It is best to secure small plants.

As stated above, although pachysandra terminalis adapts itself to varied conditions, it does best on a well-drained soil. When preparing the soil, dig the ground deeply, and incorporate a complete, balanced plant food in the soil, applying at the rate of four pounds to 100 square feet (equivalent to one rounded tablespoonful per square foot for small areas). When using as a ground cover under trees, feeding is especially important, since soil under trees is almost invariably poor, due to the removal of food from the soil by the tree roots.

When the bed is prepared, set the plants about six inches apart each way. Water well after planting.

It attains a height of about six inches. If the tops are plucked out now and then, this will induce lateral development of shoots.

An occasional feeding of complete, balanced plant food should be given, but water in well at once so as to wash all plant food down into the soil, thus avoiding any possible damage to the foliage or stems. When well fed, it is not often subject to disease, and even when its vigor is not maintained, it is not an easy prey to disease.

A 129-year-old highway marker still stands on a road near Salisbury, N. C., to show the fact that Danville, Va., is 81 miles northward.

What Is the Best Christmas Tree?

The best Christmas tree to use in the home depends somewhat on the desires of the purchaser, according to Dr. William H. Harlow of the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse University.

When asked to discuss this subject, he said, "If a tree is wanted which will not shed its needles, then spruces of all kinds, black, red, white and Norway, and even hemlock are to be avoided. These trees do not hold their leaves very long after they are brought into the home.

"However, some housewives desire to get rid of the tree immediately after the New Year, and in that case the trees I have just mentioned are in many cases satisfactory. Often children want the trees left for a longer period—sometimes the rest of the winter. In this case, it is an advantage for the parents to be able to say 'the tree is falling to pieces and we have to get it out.'

"On the other hand," says Dr. Harlow, "if a tree is wanted which will hold its needles almost indefinitely, a balsam fir, which is usually difficult to obtain, or a Douglas fir, which is still more rarely found on our Eastern markets, or one of the pines that grow in the east, are excellent trees. Recently Scott's or Scotch pine has gained favor as a Christmas tree. The needles are relatively short for a pine, and the bark often has a pleasing bronze color. The red pine, or, as it is sometimes called, the Norway pine, is also a tree that seems to be coming into favor. The needles on these trees do not fall off quickly. The red or Norway pine is considered to be one of the most beautiful pines."

PLATTEKILL

Plattekill, Dec. 16—The annual Christmas entertainment, given by the scholars of Modena school, District No. 1, under the direction of the teacher, Miss Edith Upright of Gardiner, will be held Thursday evening, December 22, in the school. Tree and presents will be a usual feature. As the centralization of schools has been achieved, this may be the final Christmas entertainment given in the ancient school.

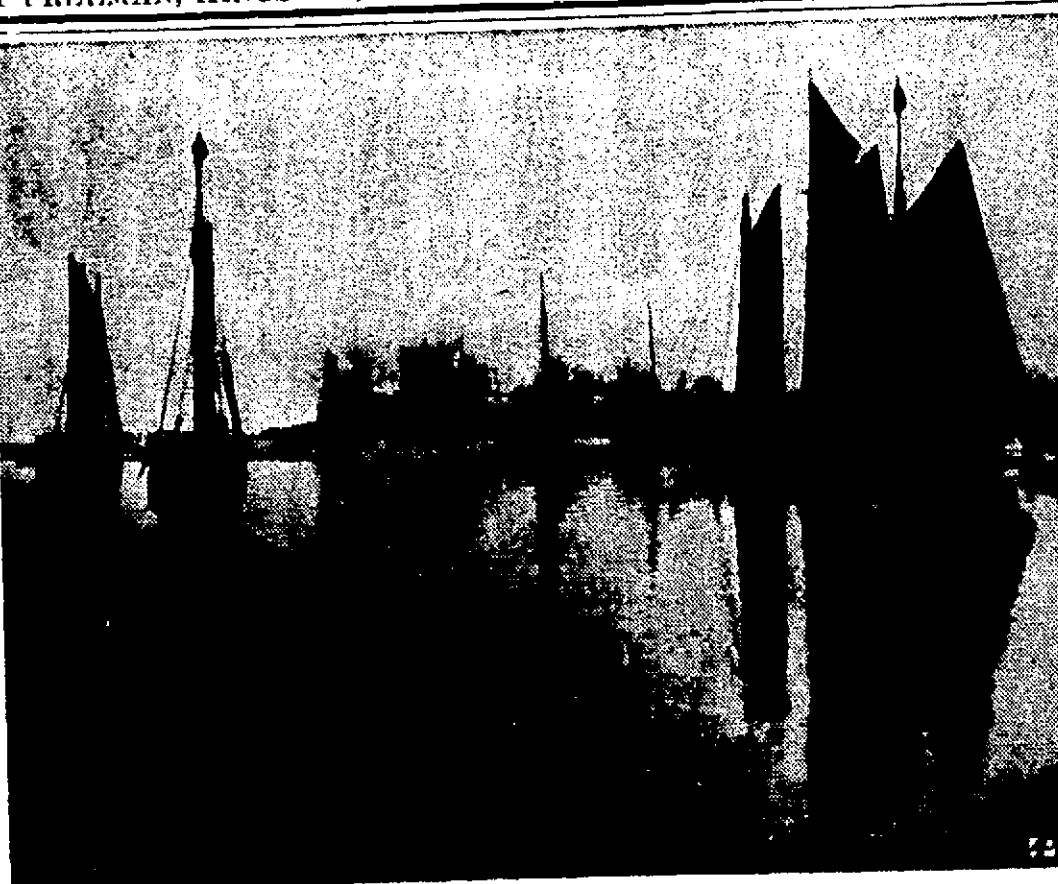

The Rev. and Mrs. Hilton Saunders are parents of a daughter, Carol Ann, born in St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, Wednesday, December 7.

The Rev. Walter Scranton, Newburgh, presided at the vesper services conducted in the Plattekill church, Sunday evening.

Mrs. Myron Coons and Mrs. Albert Butler attended the card party at Mr. and Mrs. Gershom Mount's home in Ardonia Monday evening.

Fred Troman has returned to his home in Pequannock, N. J., after spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hill here.

C. Thompson and family of Craigsville, are occupying the bungalow of Jerry Naughton south of Plattekill village.

FOUR BELLS AND ALL'S NOT WELL among some Chesapeake oyster fishermen. State conservation officials trying to curb illegal dredging tied up many boats at Annapolis, Md.

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Dec. 16—Everard Short, newly elected president of the Wittenberg Sportsmen's Club, has appointed Roger Elting as chairman of the entertainment committee for the organization. Mr. Elting is now concentrating on the club's Saturday night square dances and a masked ball for the near future. He was one of the stars of the Wittenberg team in the Ulster county contest held in the Maverick Theatre during Apple Blossom week and should prove competent to conduct the square dance program.

Mrs. Julia Leaycraft left Wednesday for a few days' visit in New York.

Mrs. Carl Eric Lindin is visiting in New York for a few days. Maud and Miska Petersham have presented the Woodstock school with a complete set of their books on industrial and agricultural subjects.

Anna Van Deusen Has Cast Removed From Injured Leg

Anna, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Van Deusen of West Chestnut street, who was badly injured 12 weeks ago when the bicycle she was riding was struck by an automobile on Andrew street, was removed to the Benedictine Hospital this morning to have the cast on her leg removed and replaced with another. Later she was taken back home. This is the fourth cast that it was found necessary to place on the injured leg. The present cast will remain in place for another four weeks before it is taken off.

Empty Bottles Return

Houston, Tex., Dec. 16 (AP)—Germany recalled 200 empty steel bottles—the Nazis had hoped would come home filled with precious helium, the non-inflammable gas that might prevent another Hindenburg disaster. The bottles sailed for Germany aboard the Nazi freighter Idarwald. Warfront observers considered the incident a definite indication the United States had decided not to sell Germany helium for her commercial lighter-than-air craft.

Groundwork Laid By Great Britain

£275,000,000 ($352,000,000) the total export guarantees which the board of trade could grant. It also contains a provision whereby material assistance could be sent to China.

R. S. Hudson, secretary of the overseas trade department, described the bill as one of the methods "without precedent in our history" which Great Britain might be required to use in fighting "unfair foreign competition."

Members of Parliament carefully avoided direct reference to Germany, whose political leaders were warned by Chamberlain yesterday to beware of Britain's financial power in any war.

Hudson linked the export drive with rearmament when he declared that "in the world of power politics, undoubtedly the trade of this country to a very large extent is dependent on the question of whether or not the world believes we are in earnest about our schemes of rearmament."

Oliver Stanley, president of the Board of Trade, defined the situation more exactly when he told Commons:

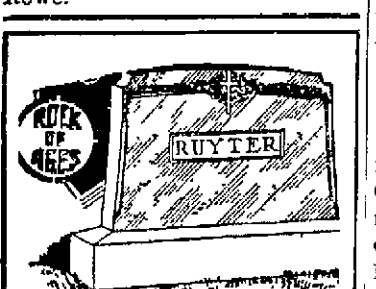

"We haven't declared a trade war on anybody and we don't want to have a trade war with anybody. We don't want to fight. We don't believe there is any need to fight."

"We believe it is better for both Germany and us to come to amicable agreements as to the sharing of markets which could enable both countries to carry on fair trade. . . . Only if we fail would it be necessary to put into operation those methods with which the government felt it right to arm itself."

Much of the Commons debate possibly was designed to reach the ears of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the German Reichsbank, who is in London on an undisclosed trade mission.

Egan Is Chosen By Hotel Group

At a meeting of the hotel and restaurant men at the Governor Clinton Hotel yesterday afternoon the following officers were elected: John J. Egan, president; R. R. Gross, secretary; Henry Milloing, treasurer.

Directors elected were: Hamilton Laurie, Stuyvesant Hotel; Stanley Dempsey, Ulster Hotel; Herman Scharrer, Herman's Restaurant on Wall street; John Janakis, Sea Grill, Jack Foye, Foye's Restaurant on Wall street. The yearly report was read and found to be very satisfactory to the members. There was a committee appointed at this meeting to go out and invite new members into the association which it is hoped will increase the number to 50 members. Through the united effort of the group it is hoped to promote business in this section for the coming year.

Baltz Speaks To Kiwanians

At the weekly meeting of Kiwanians, held at Governor Clinton Hotel Thursday, Chester Baltz, Jr., was the speaker, telling of the manufacture of pajamas. He outlined the various steps in the manufacture in a most interesting manner.

Kiwanians were reminded that the annual son and daughter meeting will be held this year on December 29, when sons and daughters, home from school, will be guests of members of the club.

Financial and Commercial

Construction Will Reach Highest Total Since 1930

What there was of outstanding business news yesterday indicated a leveling off, although apparently normal and seasonal, in industrial activity. Barron's business index for the week ended December 10 showed a decline of nearly a point, standing at 78 per cent of normal as compared with 78.9 the previous week. Carloadings for the same week totaled 613,340, a drop of 29,746 from the week before, but slightly higher than the same week in 1937.

A brighter side, not altogether unexpected, was the department of commerce estimate that construction totals for 1938 will reach the huge sum of $3,800,000,000, largest since 1930. This includes estimated expenditures for new work and also maintenance and work-relief construction. The peak year was 1927, when the total for construction work was $10,948,000,000.

Financial markets were mixed. Rails and utilities extended their gains of Wednesday, but industrials showed a slight loss for the day. In the Dow-Jones averages industrials lost 0.01 point, to 151.82; rails were up 0.21, to 31.10; utilities gained 0.25, to 22.38. Volume was 1,800,000 shares as against 1,970,000 Wednesday.

The bureau of agricultural economics forecast a continued increase in consumer demand for the next few months even should there be no further gain in industrial activity. Automobile and steel operations were seen as approaching the limit of expansion, with not much further increase expected for several months. An improved demand for farm products was reported.

It was disclosed yesterday that China will devote most of its export-import bank credit to purchase of motor trucks and gasoline. A good share of the motor truck business will go to General Motors.

Extremely heavy buying of textiles was reported from North Street yesterday with sales of gray goods totaling from 20,000,000 to 25,000,000 yards. It was indicated that purchases were being made by converters and fabricators for filling of actual orders. Prices remained firm.

It is estimated that Southern Pacific will hold next June for November of around $1,000,000, covering charges for the six consecutive months. Road will probably be in the black for December but will show a sizable deficit for the year as a whole. In November last year the road had a deficit after charges of $1,038,000.

Atchison had net for October of $1,357,568, compared with $350,201 last year. Officials of the FDIC and other bank supervision agencies are expected to approve a plan for doubling the present $5,000 limit on insurable bank deposits in case the administration demands such increase.

The beginning of a predicted reorganization of President Roosevelt's cabinet is seen in the statement that Secretary of Commerce Roper will resign as of December 23. WPA Administrator Hopkins has been mentioned as a possible successor.

Latest development in the McKesson and Robbins case was the fingerprint identification, by position last night of President F. Donald Coster as Philip Muscia, who in 1913 was convicted in a case involving the United States Hair Co.

President Green of the AFL, and George H. Davis, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce both declared in addresses last night that delegation to administrative agencies of wide regulatory powers had proved unsatisfactory and should be remedied by Congress. Both noted operations of NLRB as an instance of powers granted by Congress being exceeded and abused.

Some dividend announcements included: Abraham & Strauss, Inc., $7 1/2 cents on common; makes $72 for the fiscal year as against $3 last year. Chemical Bank & Trust Co. regular quarterly of 45 cents; directors also transferred $5,000,000 from undivided profit to surplus, making latter $50,000,000. Brazilian Traction Light & Power, Ltd., credited dividend on common. Glendene Stores declared dividend of 75 cents; disbursements for the year are $2.25 vs $3.25 last year.

The Port of New Orleans has a water frontage of 133 miles and each year handles exports valued at approximately $300,000,000 and imports valued at $150,000,000.

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—Stocks attempted to resume the rallying stride in today's market but, with the exception of scattered favorites, the direction was moderately downward.

A few favorites, copper, oils and specialties managed to attract mild buying power. Many recent leaders though, failed to retain small gains posted after a slightly lower opening. Dealings were apathetic throughout. Transfers being at the rate of approximately 1,200,000 shares, signs of a come-back were scarce near the final hour.

Bonds and commodities developed uneven trends. The foreign picture offered scant encouragement and European currencies slipped in terms of the dollar. Overseas securities markets were steady.

Douglas Aircraft edged into new high territory for the year before eventually retreating. Boeing and Bendix were moderately ahead. Resistant were Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda, Kennecott, du Pont, Owens-Illinois, International Harvester, Standard Oil of N. J. and Phillips Petroleum. Youngstown Steel Door, a climber yesterday, pushed up to a new top for 1938. Dow Chemical exhibited strength.

Loew's weakened as doubts arose regarding outcome of the stockholders' suit against the management of this film company. Paramount and Twentieth Century Fox retreated. Most rails, steels, utilities, mail orders and motors were irregularly lower.

Gay Fawkes Day Annual Celebration in England

Gay Fawkes day is an annual celebration in England when merry-makers parade the streets in masks and fantastic garb, and carry with them an effigy made of straw and rags, and shout: "Guy Fawkes, Guy! Stick 'im up on 'igh; there let 'im die!"

The excuse for this hymn of hate goes back more than 333 years, notes a writer in the Chicago Tribune. With seven other conspirators Fawkes, a gentleman of good family, planned to blow up the houses of parliament in London on November 5, 1605, when King James I was to be present. They hid 36 barrels of gunpowder in the cellar, and Fawkes was elected to touch off the explosion. But several of the plotters made the mistake of warning their friends not to attend parliament on that day. The scheme was discovered. The schemers were arrested, charged with treason, and sent to their deaths with all the horrible rites used on traitors in those days.

Next to Christmas the day is the happiest of the year for British youngsters. They are not greatly concerned with the whys and wherefores—even though nearly every song they sing has something about "remember." . . . Cherub faced boys go from house to house, collecting pennies to buy fireworks, and chanting their hymn.

When evening comes "Guy" is gibbeted over a big bonfire. Then the mummies put on their fireworks—just the way Americans do on July 4. . . . Many of the bonfires are so large that they require as many as 200 wagon loads of fuel to feed them. And the tradition behind them is probably much older than the Seventeenth century. In some parts of England there are what appear to be survivals of an ancient fire worship fete. In the course of a ritual dance children jump over the blaze as a reminder of the times when human beings instead of effigies were consumed.

British Army Chief Was Once Worshipped as a God

A British general was once worshipped as a god. This was Brigadier-General John Nicholson, who, between 1841 and 1848, distinguished himself in the campaigns of Afghanistan, the Sutlej, and the conquest of the Punjab, terminating his brilliant career as one of the great heroes of the Indian Mutiny, 1857.

During the Sikh rebellion of 1848, relates a writer in London Answers Magazine, when Nicholson was making incredible marches and conquering whole armies with a mere handful of troops, the mingled admiration and dread of him which arose in the native mind culminated in a religion.

A brotherhood of fakirs devoted themselves entirely to the worship of "Nikhul-Seyn." They would lie in wait for him and fall at his feet with votive offerings, and although Nicholson often applied the whip vigorously in an attempt to cure their very inconvenient piety, they only regarded this as further proof of his divinity.

The last of the sect dug his own grave and was found dead in it soon after the news came that Nicholson had fallen at the storming of Delhi.

To Encourage Storks

One way to encourage storks to build a nest is to place an old cart wheel on the top of a barn or disused chimney, and on this lay a loose bundle of twigs. Once a stork has built a nest, year after year, it will return to it, each time adding a few sticks to the already unwieldy pile, advises a writer in London Tit-Bits magazine. When winter approaches, storks migrate in their thousands to Africa and India. In many parts of Africa they are eagerly awaited, as they feed on the myriads of locusts which, if unchecked by man's cunning and nature's greed, would strip whole districts bare of every leaf and blade of grass. The storks gorge themselves on the locusts, digest their meal for an hour or so, then disgorge a pellet of indigestible legs and wings. Immediately after which they start gorging again.

Torture of the 'Boat'

According to the Encyclopedia Britannica, one of the most celebrated forms of torture employed in Scotland was the "boat" which comprised a long iron boot in which the foot was inserted, wedges then being driven between the limb and the boot. This was not peculiar to Scotland, for records are found in French criminal trials, and again in Ireland where in 1583 a priest named Hurley was tortured in Dublin by "boasting his feet against the fire with hot boots." The same authority says that this species of torture was employed not only for crime but as an incident in religious persecution, and sometimes by the nobility for their own ends.

Sunny Spot in England

Sidmouth is one of the most sheltered sunny spots of England. Even tropical plants flourish in the open, while leafy ramblers in the lofty surroundings provide all the shade desired. The town is the scene of May Sinclair's "The Divine Fire," and not far away at Ottery St. Mary, is an old time residence of Sir Walter Raleigh and the birthplace of Samuel Taylor Coleridge, a village which Thackeray made the Clavering St. Mary of his "Pendennis."

Guests at Central Valley

Bligh's Island Recalls

An Intolerable Tyrant. Kupang, on the island of Timor, was where Capt. William Bligh landed in a small open boat after he had spent 48 days in search of a haven following the mutiny of the "Bounty."

Timor is east of Bali in the Dutch East Indies. It is about the same area as Maryland, or Belgium, but nevertheless was difficult for Captain Bligh to find. He, as you may know, recalls a writer in the Philadelphia Inquirer, was an intolerable tyrant on the trip to Tahiti, keeping the men on the very edge of open rebellion. Affairs were at a low ebb when the Bounty dropped anchor at Tahiti, the breadfruit island, on October 26, 1789, where they remained six months.

On the return voyage the men under Bligh continued to suffer many severities, the breaking point being reached when he took their precious drinking water to irrigate the 1450 breadfruit plants aboard the Bounty. Fletcher Christian, one of the officers of the ship, led the mutiny. He decided to seize the ship.

Captain Bligh and 19 men who remained loyal to him were captured, placed in a launch and set adrift on the world's largest ocean, then and slightly explored.

The nearest outpost of civilization in those days was 4,000 miles away at Timor. Without chart or compass and with but a scanty two weeks' supply of food they set out to find it. They arrived there after many weary weeks on April 28, 1789. The island contains considerable gold, coal and petroleum, but it costs too much to get these commodities out of the almost impenetrable country.

Mecklenburg Declaration

On May 18 and 20, 1775, a convention of the patriotic citizens of Mecklenburg county, North Carolina, met and passed resolutions dissolving the political bonds which had connected them with the mother country. They declared that the colonies were free and independent and no longer owed loyalty to the king of England. This was what may be termed the original declaration of independence. These resolutions were read from the steps of the old court house at Charlotte, N. C., by Col. Thomas Polk, to an assembly of people, who received them with great enthusiasm. Capt. James Jack made the journey from Charlotte to Philadelphia on horseback, and there delivered them into the hands of the North Carolina delegation to congress.

In one reason an acre of kudzu vines in Rutherford county, North Carolina, yielded five tons of hay and enough additional growth to provide a much nearly three inches thick.

Local Death Record

Joseph, infant son of John and Ruth Rowe Duffy, died early this morning at the home in Connelly, following a short illness. The funeral will be held from the late home, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Frank C. Smith, a retired shoe clerk and a former resident of this city, died on Wednesday at his home, 105 McDonough street in Brooklyn. Funeral services will be held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock from the J. H. Tracy Funeral Home, 246 Macos street, Brooklyn, and Mass will be offered at 9:30 o'clock in the Church of Our Lady of Victory, Throop avenue and McDonough street. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth T. Smith, and while a resident of this city resided at 264 Clinton avenue. He removed to Brooklyn with his family about a year ago.

The funeral of Isabella A. Stewart was held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Samuel Williams, of 76 Derrenbacher street, on Tuesday afternoon, at 2:30 p. m. The services were conducted by the Rev. C. P. Mayskens of the Church of the Comforter, who spoke feelingly of the departed. Many friends visited the home to pay their respects personally to the memory of Mrs. Stewart and to console her bereaved family. Floral tributes were received in great numbers. The bearers were Donald Stewart, Warren Stewart, Robert Michelson and Kenneth S. Williams. Burial was in Wiltwyck cemetery in the family plot.

Parked Car Left in Middle of the Highway

A report to the sheriff's office shortly after noon today stated that a car had been parked in the road in front of the Clinton Ford near Rosendale for several hours. Deputy Sheriff Ray Winne investigated the report and found that as stated, a car, a 1923 Buick sedan, was standing in the middle of the highway. He moved the car off the road, but was unable to get in touch with the owner or driver. The license plate indicated that the car was the property of a New Paltz man.

Pre-Holiday Tea Of Married Women Attended By 200

The Married Women's Club entertained at a musicale and tea Thursday afternoon in the Governor Clinton Hotel at an affair which launched the Christmas social season.

The program was given in the Crystal room, which had been darkened so that the candlelight lent an appealing atmosphere to the decorated room for the tableaux and the program of music. Dr. Charles Gilbert Spross of Poughkeepsie entertained the guests with several piano solos. Between his group members of the Married Women's Club presented tableaux of the Christmas scenes.

The piano solos included "Paganini in E Flat" and "Second Caprice Espagnol" by Moskowski; "Notturmo" by Respighi; "Hungarian Christmas Pastoral" by Dechany. As encores Dr. Spross gave his own composition, "Song Without Words" for left hand alone and a piano transcription of Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyrie and the Magic Fire Scene."

The first tableau was a representation of the Annunciation and was in position as Mrs. Clarence Wolfersteig sang Schubert's "Ave Maria." It showed Mrs. Hutton as the Virgin Mary, dressed in blue, and Mrs. Parker K. Brimner as the Angel Gabriel, dressed all in gold, against rich hangings of red, blue and purple.

Next were shown the effects. Mrs. Raymond E. Craft, Mrs. Irwin Jennings and Mrs. John Garon, wearing blue and purple robes, as the angel appeared to them against a starry background. During this tableau a trio consisting of Mrs. Maurice W. Vennio, Mrs. Lloyd LeFever and Mrs. Phillips Ramsay, sang "The Shepherd's" arranged for women's voices by Mrs. R. R. Gross.

The final tableau, which was the Nativity scene, was resplendent with the rich colorings of the preceding sets. During this tableau Mrs. R. R. Gross sang "In a Manger Lowly" by Mabel W. Daniels, with violin obligato by Harold Canfield. In this group were Mrs. Clyde Hutton, Mrs. Parker Brimner, Mrs. Edward Remmert, Mrs. Louis Keger, Mrs. Ernest Althouse, Mrs. Charles Terwilliger, Mrs. James Mann, Mrs. John Garon, Mrs. Raymond Craft and Mrs. Irwin Jennings. Mrs. Walter T. Tremper was accompanist for all the singing.

A prologue and epilogue, "The Spirit of Christmas," was read by Mrs. S. Maxwell Taylor. Candle bearers were Mrs. Henry Bruck and Mrs. William Wershang.

Following the program tea was served the some 200 in the lounge. Here, too, the room had been transformed for the holidays. Candles gleamed from every corner and the yule log burned cheerfully upon the hearth. The tea table, beautiful in its simplicity, with its centerpiece of red and silver cones and five branch candelabra, was presided over by Mrs. Joseph Garland and Mrs. M. Donald Lane. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Howard St. John, Mrs. Walter Joyce, Mrs. Leonard Flicker and Mrs. Joseph Deegan. On the reception committee were Mrs. Dorr Monroe, Mrs. Harry Sweeney, Mrs. C. Ray Everett, Mrs. C. J. Heilselman, Mrs. Van Dyck Basten, Mrs. Addison Schultz and Mrs. N. LeVan Haver. Stage settings for the tableaux were in charge of Mrs. Raymond Craft and Mrs. Eugene Freer. Co-chairmen of the afternoon were Mrs. L. LeVan Haver and Mrs. R. K. Gross.

Candlelight Service For Christmas Music

With no light but candle light in the church, a special Christmas service of music, carols and anthems will be held in the First Presbyterian Church, Elmendorf street and Tremper avenue next Sunday evening beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Literally, the lighting will be provided by the people who attend the service. For each person there will be a candle to be received and lighted at the entrance. The candles thus lighted will be placed by the ushers in holders provided for that purpose through the auditorium. The effect will be heightened by extensive evergreen decorations.

Aided by a stringed quartet and French horn, an augmented senior choir and a junior choir will present the following program: Organ Prelude—"Bereuse" by Godard. In this number Hollis Burhans will play the French horn solo, with organ accompaniment.

Processional Hymn—"O Come, All Ye Faithful," after which "Silent Night, Holy Night" will be sung softly.

Group of carols by the junior choir, unaccompanied. Bartolone Solo—Donald Clark of Syracuse University.

The senior choir and a male quartet will be heard in a group of carols separately.

"Jesu Bambino" by Pedro Young, sung by Mrs. Carolyn Rich, soprano.

Anthem—"The Cherubim Song" by Bortinslansky.

Hymn—"It Came Upon the Midnight Clear."

Anthem—"The Shepherds Christmas Song" by Clarence Dickinson.

"Oh Lord Most Holy" by Cesar Franck, sung by August Franz, tenor, accompanied by violin, cello and organ.

Recessional Hymn—"O Little Town of Bethlehem."

Organ Postlude—"The Heavens Are Telling" by Haydn.

The program has been arranged under the direction of Miss Edna Merrihew, organist and choir director.

A Good Vocabulary
Is a Social Asset

Avoid Errors, Trite Phrases
Beth's reconditioned her vocabulary and from Bill's smile you know it's hitting on all eight cylinders.

Yet not so long ago her speech was pretty average. While she didn't use such "cheap Sadie" crudities as "Ain't it?" or "She's to lunch," her talk was full of careless errors that sounded just as glaring to the cultured people she wanted to know. She'd say "He acted LIKE he WAS tired," for "AS IF he WERE tired."

Such slips won't mar Beth's talk now—and she's gotten rid of trite phrases, too. How she used to bore clever men and girls with her hackneyed "the time of my life."

These days the same people call Beth charming, witty. She speaks brightly of "a day bursting with fun." And dresses up her talk with colorful words—"dry leaves that rustle like a taffeta petticoat," "a heady whiff of bubbling hot coffee," "crisp pungency of winter air."

Easy with good speech to win the right kind of friends. Our 32-page booklet helps you improve your vocabulary, weed out errors, cheap slang. Tells how to make your talk glow with life, color. Tips on spelling, pronunciation.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

By Robin Coates

HOLLYWOOD—It can't matter much, as big things are reckoned in Hollywood, but the town seems to have unearthed a movie director.

I say it can't matter much because, after all these years, a great many movie fans can't tell you offhand who Cecil B. DeMille is. I asked a lady once, just to see, and she thought a while and finally came up brightly with the suggestion that C. B. was—was—let her see now—oh, yes, C. B. was one of Gloria Swanson's ex-es.

And getting that kind of guess on C. B., the town's most and longest hollywood director, I don't suppose the name of Garson Kanin would mean a thing.

But I'm going to write about him anyway. I think, as the years go on, Garson Kanin will be a name all fans will notice, just as they've finally begun to talk about a "Capra picture" instead of about the stars who play in it.

You can put him down right now as a man to remember—which ought to make it easy because he's the lad who directed "A Man to Remember," one of the year's finest even if it didn't cost a mint.

IT'S rather a shock, meeting this Kanin for the first time. He's so young he's bashful about his age. He claims 28 years (had a birthday Thanksgiving) but you'd guess, first glance, about 23. He's slight, thin-faced, pink cheeked, slightly baldish over the high forehead, and he looks, acts and laughs like a boy. In fact, when he directs his youngsters in "The Great Man Votes," he gives the impression that he might, very easily, take one of their roles and get by with it. Maybe that's how he gets the results he does.

Kanin was brought west a year and a half ago by Sam Goldwyn. For eight months Kanin sat in a sumptuous office at Goldwyn's studio, attended by two secretaries, and did nothing. Goldwyn thought of him as a producer, called him "Thalberg" and urged him to wait for his opportunity. Just short of the padded celt division, Kanin decided he had to quit. "In my poor deluded fashion," he pleaded with Sam, "I like to think of myself as something of an artist. I don't want to be a producer—I don't know business. I want to direct."

EVENTUALLY Sam relented. Kanin went to RKO, shortly was given "A Man to Remember." In 15 days he had it done for $119,000, synonymous with chicken-feed in a big studio. Everybody was surprised he tackled another quick one, "Next Time I Marry," and then the reward came. "The Great Man Votes" is a "special" with a 35-day schedule and plenty of money invested.

Suitor—Sir, may I have your daughter for my wife?
 Her Father—Bring your wife around and I'll see.

Group Will Play For Legionnaires

The Kingston Post of the American Legion, at its monthly meeting this evening, at the Legion Memorial Building, will be serenaded by the local band of talented young artists known as "The Blue Ridge Ramblers."

Don Jacob, speaking in behalf of CME Every, Herb Every, Gordon Graig and Doug Roosa, the five Ramblers, stated that their services tonight will be an expression of appreciation of the Americanism program.

Legionnaire Alfred Messenger in charge of the Post's Activity committee said that as soon as the regular purpose of the meeting is accomplished the Post and its Auxiliary will partake of an evening of fun, entertainment and dancing. Refreshments will be served.

Due to the extensive business program and the many committees to be heard from, Commander Joseph Sills who will preside at this meeting, requests that the members be seated at 8 o'clock promptly.

Morehouse Speaks at Moran School
 Moran's Business School yesterday heard William Morehouse, Ulster county's leading 4-H Club worker, tell of the work of local 4-H units and of his recent trip to the National 4-H Club Congress at Chicago.

Morehouse, who has completed his eighth year of work with the Lake Katrine Club, was one of New York State's 33 delegates who earned the coveted prize trip. Morehouse said, "A week in Chicago as a guest and delegate to the National 4-H Congress is a week never to be forgotten. I hope all others interested in 4-H work will strive their utmost to be chosen next year."

While his Chicago conquest is still fresh in his mind, Morehouse is now working for the highest individual award any 4-H member can attain, the annual Washington, D. C. trip.

Morehouse is now studying accounting and secretarial work at Moran's Business School.

Colonials Swamp Philadelphia Hebrews at Auditorium by 43-20

1,500 Fans Witness Kingston Shellack American Leaders

Jewels Lead Now

Barney Sedran's Cagers Show Title Form as Predicted—Frankel, Kaplan and Fleigel High Scorers

Barney Sedran and his Colonials deserved an orchid, in fact, a bunch of them, for their sensational 43-20 victory over the Philadelphia Hebrews, in the American Basketball League game at the municipal auditorium. Approximately 1,500 fans were on hand to see the upset of the league leaders by the Kingston representatives, branded as prospective champions of the first half.

That "on night" for the Colonials cost the Hebrews their American League lead, as the Sedranites threw in everything but the week's wash to earn their 23-point victory. Kingston's victory, starring Nat Frankel, Bernie Fleigel, Sammy Kaplan and Chuck Reiser, who went in for the closing minutes, lowered the percentage of the Sphas, driving them back to second place. The Jewels are on top now with a percentage of .700. Kingston is third, but judging from last night's performance, it won't be long before the locals are on top.

Manager Sedran, who opined that his band of young cagers would dominate the American league when they started to click, had the pleasure of seeing his club start its championship drive in stellar fashion against Eddie Gottlieb's quintet heralded by Announcer Hyman Aduchefsky as the premier basketball outfit of the world prior to the game, as he introduced the players.

The boxscore tells the story of what the Colonials did offensively and defensively. None of the Hebrew stars was able to collect more than two fields, but the Sedranites crashed through the Phils' barrier to push in close-up shots, and banged in deuces from long range in a fashion that had the fans cheering all night. Frankel led the scoring parade with 13. Next came Fleigel and Kaplan with eight apiece, and then Kramer with six. Chuck Reiser, entering the lineup for the finish, on the home-stretch, contributed four with two fields and three close range as the Phils stood bewildered.

Start on Fouls
Accurate foul shooting netted the Colonials six of their eight points in the first period. Frankel's scrumming loss gave the locals their other two. The Hebrews came through with three from the free stripe for their only scores in the opening session.

Taking the floor for the second frame, the Colonials began a bombardment from the field that brought them 17 points. Kaplan, Fleigel, Kramer and Frankel each contributed a pair of deuces, and a free throw. Kaplan missed a free throw, the only one that was a misfire for the Colonials all night out of 10 chances given them by Pete Sinnott, the referee.

The Phils tallied nine markers in this period, on two pointers by Shiky "Tarzan" Gotthoff and Cy Kaselman, and two by Red Rosan, and a foul by Moe Goldman.

With the scoreboard reading 25-12 at the start of the third period, in favor of the Colonials, the home team continued its drive for points. In the last session, gleaming 16 points on fields and two fouls for 18, while the Hebrews were registering their eight markers. In this canto, the Kingston tossers looked like the best combination ever to show at the auditorium as they did everything with the ball that could be sought by fans of the game. Sedran's men flipped in close shots, peppered the basket accurately from long range, and in general, gave the patrons plants of thrills as they passed the cuffs, and recovered when the visitors had possession of the ball. Frankel's rap of deuces and the two scored by Reiser as he went in fresh from the bench, to pump in two from short range, generated cheers that almost knocked the roof off.

Johnson, Kaplan, Fleigel and Jules Bender, who went in with Reiser to freshen the lineup, each added fields that helped seal the Phils under. The badly shaken Quaker City boys were held to two goals by Gotthoff and Kaselman and four fouls.

Carnegie Victory Was No. 1 Upset

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—Carnegie Tech's football victory over Pittsburgh was ranked officially as the No. 1 upset of the 1938 sports season by the 70 sports experts participating in the Associated Press' eighth annual poll today, but analysis of the returns reveal that the outcome of the heated National League pennant race actually was the biggest surprise.

With points awarded on a 2-2-1 basis as each expert made three nominations to the "upset" list, Carnegie Tech's 20-10 triumph over Pitt was given a total of 55½ points to top the list. Thirty-one points went to the Cubs for their pennant victory and 25 to the Pirates for their collapse. Combining the Cubs and Pirates' points would produce a total of 56 points, a half-point more than was credited to Carnegie Tech.

Farr Favored Over Nova 7-5

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—The most significant heavyweight fight of the apathetic indoor season will go on in Madison Square Garden tonight between Lou Nova, a promising youngster from Alameda, Calif., and Tommy Farr, a doddering ancient of 24 from Tonypandy, Wales. The prize is the doubtful pleasure of fighting Joe Louis for the heavyweight title next year.

The bookmakers have made Farr the favorite and live will get you seven if Nova wins.

No Boxing Card This Evening

As announced previously, there will be no boxing bouts at the municipal auditorium tonight. The next fight show will be held after Christmas.

Geertsen Stars With 66 Golf Score

Miami, Fla., Dec. 16 (AP)—John Geertsen, 29-year-old Salt Lake City, Utah, golf professional who co-starred in the opening round of the $10,000 Miami Open golf tournament with a 66 today took his share of the honors lightly.

Asked if the 66 was his lowest tournament score, Geertsen grinned and said:

"Well, it is up to now." Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., and Jimmy Thompson of Shawnee, Pa., shot a pair of 65's to stay close on the pace, with Ben Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., in third place with 69.

Six others, including the over-dogged Johnny Revolta of Coral Gables, Fla., were tied at 70, while among six 71's was Paul Runyan, P. G. A. title-holder.

Coach G. Warren Kias will start Shultis and Lindhurst as forwards; Van Buren center; and Dabbin and Murphy in the backcourt. This five will be the same as against Port Jervis, with the exception of Ray Lindhurst, who didn't see action until the final chapter.

Due to Lindhurst's fine work in the Port engagement, Kias has indicated that the lanky youngster will be given a starting berth tonight in the Newburgh fray. Harry Flowers and Buddy Hughes will be on tap for reserve duty.

In tonight's game Newburgh will be without the services of its ace center, Ed Pius, but a batch of material consisting of Angelo Jannotti, Bill Lawlor, Bob Cote, Parsio, Buddy Rohan will make up the probable starting array which has plenty of basketball traits.

The Goldbacks will also have Stevens, Lawrence and Inzarri to call on for reserve duty. Both Lawrence and Stevens collected four markers last week and may get the nod for the starting assignment.

This will be another opportunity for the Goldbacks tonight to stop Jess Shultis, ace scorer of the league and brilliant player of the Maroon five. They had two chances last year but failed. From Newburgh comes word that Coach Gowy has planned an air-tight defense in the attempt to stop Jess.

The probable starting lineups: Kingston Shultis, R.P., Lindhurst, L.P., Van Buren, C., Dubin, R.G., Murphy, L.G.

Colonials Look Like Champs—More Points for Coughlin

That win the Colonials rang up over the Phils by 23 points last night was a real basketball treat.

Barney Sedran wasn't wrong when he adjudged his selection of players as championship material and only a miracle can keep the locals away from the title this season.

That Bernie Fleigel is one of the best centers, if not the best ever, that Kingston fans have seen at the auditorium... That goes for this season or any other.

He's a crack-shot besides being an ace at his position... The sports who stayed away last night missed a lot... But, there weren't many absentees.

Carlie Husta has predicted that no team in the league will be able to defeat the Colonials on their home court... He said this last week... The ex-Colonial tosser ran into good luck at Washington last night... His Haymakers trimmed the Capital City American Leaguers, 31-19.

Husta threatened to quit as manager, but his note of resignation wasn't accepted... The injury flax robbed him of Stanton and Moe Frankel... Maybe the ill-luck last night snapped the ill-luck streak for Carlie... We hope so.

Pete Sinnott arrived late to referee last night... His car froze up in Newburgh... Some of the fans wish something like this would happen to his whistle.

Two sweet little feminine fans on the sidelines conversed: Miriam Singer—We should have cheer leaders... Eleanor Adin—Yes, I'd like to be one and dress in green satin... Miriam Singer—Do you want to be a cheer leader or an attraction?... Gene Freer did a good job keeping the spectators pepped in his section...

Where did Jack Foye, Matt Herzog, Van Haver and Joe Forman go after the game?... They were happy!... Barney Sedran stuck around until the last gun, puffing his cigar and receiving congratulations. He's a great manager and a swell guy... Bob Murray, who knows his basketball, says Barney has the best team he's ever seen in any professional hoop...

Right Bob.

The Cubs insist they'll start the season with Phil Cavarretta back on first base instead of Rip Collins... The Cubs, incidentally, were willing to give the Cardinals just about everything for Johnny Mize, Ducky Medwick, Enos Slaughter and/or Don Padgett...

Now that the Red Sox-Tigers deal is settled, look for Brooklyn and Detroit to act... Joe Triner, the Illinois boxing commissioner, is in New York trying to interest Mike Jacobs in putting on a couple of indoor shows in Chicago before the season's over... Mike may try to pair Henry Armstrong with Bob Pastor there after New Year's... We like Lou Nova to dump Tommy Farr tonight, despite those 7-5 odds... Lou's right hand shots should do the trick... Doc Parrshall, the year's No. 1 trotting horse driver, marks his Peter Asira as the '39 Hambletonian winner... Fight experts say young Selvin Walton, a welterweight out of Tulsa, Texas, now fighting on the Florida circuit, will be thrilling 'em all soon.

Outside of the trades, the most important thing to come out of the meeting was the decision of the rival leagues to use the same ball next season.

The ease with which Cleveland and Philadelphia received permission to play night ball in the American League makes it a logical assumption that every one of the 16 big league teams will be scheduling a regular quota of night games within two years.

Los Angeles, Dec. 16 (AP)—The argument over how many pounds Seabiscuit should carry into the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap is getting to be an annual affair, but this year the bickering seems a little sharper than usual.

Weights for the big race next March 4 were posted at Santa Anita today.

Seabiscuit, Charles S. Howard's stako king, was down for 134 pounds. That is five pounds over scale for a horse soon to be six years old.

Had Seabiscuit been given 132 or maybe 133, today's protests from his admirers would have been less loud. And had the weight been less than that, the roars from the anti-Seabiscuit faction would have been loudest of all.

In exchange, they parted only with Gene Moore, an outfielder who was of little use to them most of last season, and Ira Hatcher, a pitcher they didn't need.

Big Gamble

In giving up Auker and Wade, Detroit has gambled mightily that Fred Hutchinson, its expensive young pitching prize from Seattle, will live up to its price tag. The Tigers gave two seasoned players, Jo-Jo White and Tony Piet, and a lot of owner Walter Briggs' automobile money for the 19-year-old, who won 25 and lost 7 last year. They cannot count too strongly on Archie McKain, the southpaw they got from Boston.

Over in the National League, the consensus seems to be that the Boston Bees did the smartest bit of trading when they got first baseman Buddy Hassett from Brooklyn. Hassett is a fine neither singer and a .300 hitter, neither of which the Bees possessed before.

In exchange, they parted only with Gene Moore, an outfielder who was of little use to them most of last season, and Ira Hatcher, a pitcher they didn't need.

Coster Kills Self At His Mansion

George Dietrich, another indicted officer of McKesson and Robbins, was in the party that arrived at the front door of the Coster home just at the time the shot was heard.

He rushed upstairs with Dietrich, found servants in a commotion before the bathroom door, which was locked.

Flitch broke the door in and found Coster dead. Mrs. Coster walked about the room crying: "Where's Donald? Where's Donald?"

Then she collapsed. Dietrich cried out repeatedly: "He didn't commit murder. Why did he have to do it? Why did he do it?"

Coster had been distraught all morning and had sent a servant or a highball just before he shot himself.

While the servant was gone, Coster went upstairs and fired the fatal shot.

Developments today showed that George Vernard was Musical's younger brother, Arthur, and federal authorities held it likely that Dietrich was a second brother who dropped from sight after the crash of the Musical finances years ago.

They also were checking the possibility that Mrs. Coster might also have had another name in her younger years.

The Costers were childless. Acting U. S. Attorney Gregory F. Noonan disclosed today there was a fourth brother, Robert, who will be arrested in the case. Robert, an employee of McKesson and Robbins, was on his way to New York from New Haven.

By EDWARD R. WALLACE
Fingerprints Tell Story
New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—A mocking fingerprint emerged today from quarter-century-old police files to identify F. Donald Coster, indicted president of the $87,000,000 McKesson & Robbins drug firm, as Philip Musica, ex-convict and swindler.

Inspector John J. Donovan announced yesterday that the fingerprints showed Coster to be Musica, twice convicted, once pardoned by President Taft.

Coster, now facing federal charges with two of his drug firm aides, thus stood revealed as a man who cast his past aside, and fictionalized a new, more brilliant background for himself, when fortune once again decreed—as it had before—his position to be a commanding one in the world of money.

For Musica was an immigrant boy, but Coster in his own version, written for "Who's Who," gave himself American birth, in Washington, D. C., new parents, and a background of culture and foreign education.

But yesterday only a few hours after he, with George Dietrich, assistant treasurer of McKesson and Robbins, and George Vernard, agent in charge of sales, had been arraigned on federal charges of conspiracy and filing false statements with the New York Stock Exchange, his new robes were stripped from him and he stood revealed as Musica, the man who was:

Arrests and Convictions
Convicted of grand larceny 23 years ago in the collapse of the million-dollar United States Hair Company.

Convicted in federal court of customs duty fraud, in 1909 fine $5,000, sentenced to a year in prison, then pardoned by President Taft after serving six months.

Arrested in 1920 on a charge of subornation of perjury, grand larceny, and a notorious murder case investigation, released on bail after discharged.

With these revelations to guide them, investigators moved ahead today in their attempts to discover what happened to $18,000,000 of McKesson & Robbins assets which their search has thus far failed to disclose.

As four investigations went on, from Washington came a firm's nomenclature from Assistant U. S. Attorney General Brien McMahon, that the justice department was investigating leads indicating that Coster "had engaged in shipping arms and munitions to belligerent countries in cases labeled 'milk of magnesia'."

"Scratches the Surface"
In New York, U. S. Attorney Gregory Noonan declared the indictment against Coster and his companions "just scratches the surface."

From James J. Caffrey, regional administrator of the Securities Exchange Commission, came the assertion that seven sellers carried on the books of the firm's crude drug department did not even exist, and that the company had never had dealings with several reputable London firms, listed on the corporation's books as heavily indebted to it.

Coster, his Fairfield, Conn., house guarded by a police patrol car after "prowler" complaints, said nothing.

The mystery of Musica's "transition" period—two years when he dropped from sight then reappeared as "F. Donald Coster," in the drug business at Mount Vernon, N. Y.—it was hoped might be cleared today at a hearing called by Assistant State Attorney General Ambrose V. McCare.

Only a single witness is scheduled to testify, McCall would not identify the person.

One opinion that the "principal motive for filing of false statements" in behalf of the firm was "the mulcting of the company by certain persons of about $150,000 annually as commissions on sales which were never made" came from Robert Kline, assistant general counsel for the SEC.

1913's Great Scandal
Failure of the United States Hair Company was a great scandal of 1913.

Philip Musica, who now stands revealed as Coster, then 36, was highly respected as the son of a man who had been dealing with the city's top bankers for 30 years.

Suddenly, he was accused of negotiating $300,000 to $500,000 in fraudulent bills of lading and worthless drafts.

Investigators who sought 700 cases of human hair supposedly imported by Musica found nothing but "rubbish" hair, and lead to add weight to the packing cases.

Detectives learned Musica and his family had fled, headed for Honduras. They learned likewise that banks both in this country and in foreign countries had been duped by fraudulent invoices of what was generally estimated at more than $1,000,000.

At New Orleans the detectives found the Musicas on board ship. Returned to New York, they were indicted. Philip insisted he alone was to blame. He pleaded guilty to a charge of grand larceny and was given a suspended sentence.

Philip Musica was born in 1877 in Naples, son of Antonio, the barber, whose people were of peasant stock.

In 1893—Philip then was 6—Antonio loaded his family into ship's steerage and came to New York.

On the teeming east side, he opened a barber shop, and began a small importing business.

Dealing chiefly in cheeses and other foodstuffs demanded by the fast-growing "Little Italy," he listened finally to the impatient, ambitious voice of his son, Philip, who had grown into a sharp, shrewd lad, and the business suddenly boomed.

The Musicas, including two brothers, Arthur and George, and two sisters, Louise and Marie, moved to a handsome home in the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn.

Philip moved in wealthy Italian circles. Only the best places saw him. He became a figure, a man about town.

Curious government investigators halted the rising fortune in the spring of 1909. Customs weighers were questioned. Investigators learned the Musicas had escaped heavy duty charges by bribing weighers to mark down the weights on invoices for cheese imports.

Takes Full Blame
Philip and his father were charged with fraud, but Philip dramatically told the court the fault was his, that his father was blameless.

He was sentenced to serve a year in prison and to pay a $5,000 fine. On October 23, 1909, he went to Auburn state prison, which then received federal prisoners. The charge against his father was dismissed.

In the spring of 1910 a pardon from President Taft opened the prison doors, and Philip walked out, free.

Again, he urged his father into business. This time, the importation of hair, since high cutures of women boosted the price of false hair, often as much as $800 a pound.

The United States Hair Company was formed. Fortune smiled again. An even more imposing home was purchased in an exclusive section of Brooklyn, with stables and a great, sweeping lawn.

Once more Philip was the dashing man of society. He affected high heels to give him height and topped his dressing with jewels. Credit was extensive at the city's banks. His company's stock sold on the curb.

Then in the spring of 1912 he appeared in the offices of a Manhattan bank, asking a loan of $370,000 on 216 cases of human hair. The bank, however, advanced only $25,000.

Clerk Discovers Tampering
A clerk, glancing at the bills of lading, discovered what appeared to be tampering with the figures. Detectives found the boxes contained only "rubbish" hair and lead.

The beautiful home, they soon discovered, contained virtually nothing. It had been stripped. The trail led to New Orleans.

Arrested aboard a vessel headed for Honduras, the Musicas were found to have secreted on them nearly $50,000 in cash. A paid-up insurance policy for $225,000 in Philip's name also was found.

Philip again pleaded "I am so blame." He offered restitution.

Philip pleaded guilty to grand larceny, aided the district attorney to clean up the case while he was a prisoner in the fombs for three years, and finally was discharged with a suspended sentence, March 23, 1916.

He worked as a special investigator for the district attorney, and then Barnett Baff, a chicken handler, was slain. Joseph Cohen, among others, was charged with his murder.

Musica obtained an affidavit from a gangster who said he heard Cohen and a group of other men planning the murder of Baff.

Cohen was convicted. Charges of perjury and false testimony flew. Governor Alfred E. Smith, ruffled by the claims, commuted Cohen's sentence to life imprisonment.

In 1920 Musica, who was then working in an attorney's office under the name of Johnson, was indicted for subornation of perjury in the case. He was released on bail.

"Life" Comes to End
And the "life" of Philip Musica came to an end.

A new "life" apparently had already started when "F. Donald Coster" began to appear in the financial pages as president of the McKesson & Robbins Company in 1926.

Julian F. Thompson, then an investment banking firm agent, had met Coster the previous year when Coster was head of a prosperous hair tonic firm, Girard & Co., at Mount Vernon.

Thompson said Coster had headed it since 1922.

Thompson said he arranged bank credits for Coster in 1925. A year later Coster came to him and Thompson said he (Thompson) induced Connecticut bankers to put up $1,000,000 to purchase McKesson & Robbins.

Girard & Company merged with McKesson & Robbins in 1927, and the result was a corporation for which $20,000,000 was provided.

Thompson became treasurer. The corporation grew rapidly until it was figured an $87,000,000 concern.

Suddenly on December 6 an application for receivership of the company was filed at Hartford, Conn., alleging waste and mismanagement and false items "in excess of $10,000,000." Trading on the company stock was suspended.

Four days later, the state supreme court tied up a $100,000 brokerage account of Mrs. Carol E. Coster, wife of the president. An accountant said at an attorney general's hearing $18,000,000 of assets might be non-existent.

Last Monday the company's board of directors called on Coster and Dietrich to resign. Two warehouses supposedly at Montreal were declared to be non-existent.

On Wednesday Coster and Dietrich were arrested at Fairfield, Conn.

"WORKADAY" CHARM FOR MATRONS

MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9961

Out marketing, or walking your dog, or just busying yourself around the house—you'll delight in wearing this Marian Martin datterer. Prints are slenderizing when the frock makes a point of slim, straight lines, and dainty touches, as does Pattern 9961. It's a pleasure to make—for it has few pattern pieces, and its accompanying diagrammed cut and seam them together. You'll love the height-giving button closing which makes the laundering easier. Other points you'll admire—the two collar and sleeve versions, the choice of shirring or darts at the shoulders. Why not make one version ruffled-trimmed and one with ric-rac?

Pattern 9961 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 1½ yards 35 inch fabric and 2½ yards ruffling.

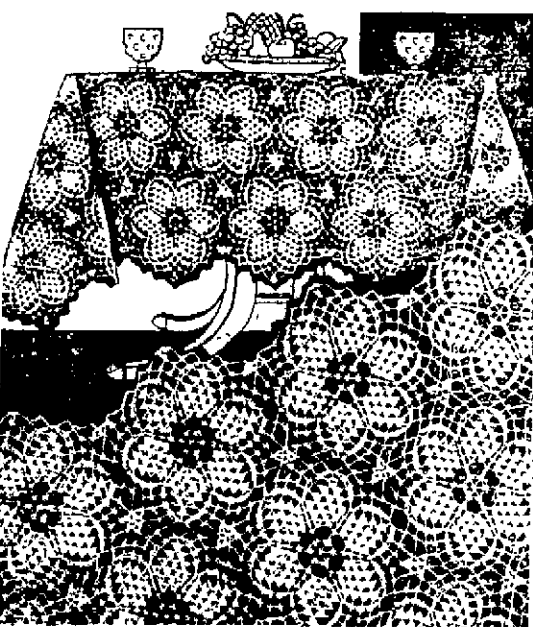

Send FIFTY CENTS in coins for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and STYLE NUMBER.

Spring, 1939, MARIAN MARTIN PATTERN BOOK is just out and ready for mailing! See the latest styles, easy enough for beginners to make! Basic budget wardrobes! Bride fashions! Suits and their accessories! Coats, dresses and ensembles! "Fundamental" frocks. Cruise outfits. Styles for the larger figure. College, graduation and "date" clothes. Togs for the "small fry," as well as maternity wear, and an infant layette. Included are lingerie, and housedresses. Order now! BOOK, FIFTEEN CENTS. PATTERN, FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

A new Rug for Christmas!

A glorious gift for the entire family...

Nothing can give so much pleasure for so long a time as a good rug, for the floor covering is the very foundation of interior loveliness. It pays, however, to buy a rug that is not only beautiful, but durable as well. We have a fine assortment of HARDWICK & MAGEE rugs in a wide range of prices. And every one of them is backed by a 75-year-old reputation for dependable quality.
